WALL PAPER TALKS.

Do The Best You Can.

BY J. SMILLIE.

Do something is a wise advice,
And do the best you can,
For winter's ice and winter's snow,
Shall ever come and ever go,
And action shows the man.

Ambition leads this way or that,
And up to deeds of fame,
So always do the best you can,
While I shall do the same.

We may not reach the golden chains,
That hang from portals high,
Yet who can't do a little more,
And better than has been before,
If they will only try?

Ambition leads this way or that,
And up to deeds of fame,
So always do the best you can,
While I shall do the same.

When we were boys and girls around,
The camping fires of youth,
We airy castles built in air,
Yet through the years from family prayer,
Hang precious threads of truth.

Ambition leads this way or that,
And up to deeds of fame,
So always do the best you can,
While I shall do the same.

We cannot keep the golden days,
We cannot hold to-day,
And if we stand or stop to think,
We'll find we're only on the brink,
Of things that slip away.

Ambition leads this way or that,
And up to deeds of fame,
So always do the best you can,
While I shall do the same.

And while the forms and fashions change,
What constitutes a man,
Will run through every written page,
About the same in every age,
So do the best you can.

Ambition leads this way or that,
And up to deeds of fame,
So always do the best you can,
While I shall do the same.

CONWAY.

A very pretty wedding ceremony was solemnized at eight o'clock, Wednesday evening, February 3rd, at the home of James Moon, Quinte View. Conway, when his eldest daughter, Marie Etta, was united in marriage to William John Spearing, of Conway. The bride was given away by her father, and wore a gown of ivory silk trimmed with Valenciennes allover. Her only ornament was a gold locket and chain, the gift of the groom. The bridesmaids were Miss Ruby Buck, Sydenham, and Miss Pearl Richards, Kingston, and the groomsmen, John Fitchett, Parma. The groom presented the bridesmaids with lockets and chains, and the groomsmen with a gold ring. After the ceremony the

WALL PAPER TALKS.

The season is approaching when many persons minds turn naturally to the thought of housecleaning.

To the average lady or gentleman there is a great deal of worry about the particular kind of paper to be used in the various rooms to produce the most pleasing effect.

The first intention of a home is that it be "a good place to live in." It should therefore express Cheerfulness, Restfulness, Harmony. You have been in homes that fairly radiate these virtues, and perhaps the cost of papering was not one-tenth of that expended on another home that is gloomy and depressing in the extreme. We are naturally effected by our surroundings. This has been acknowledged since the first man looked upon the first ocean's wide expanse; since the first conjurer draped his stage with black velvet, yea, since the first red umbrella was taken into the first pasture. Therefore we must strive in the selections we make of Wall Paper to get a color or combination of colors that will not jar on our nerves. It shall be my object in a few "TALKS" on the subject to give you some light on the subject of color harmony. Did you ever see a room draped entirely in black that expressed cheerfulness? Did you ever see a room entirely in white that expressed restfulness? Between these two extremes lie a vast range of colors and combinations of colors that will harmonize with your surroundings as well as your nerves.

Don't forget that choosing a Wall Paper is something like choosing a wife—you will have to live with your choice. The John Gilpin chorus is fine, you must all hear it, but even this would become monotonous if listened to for 14 hours a day, 365 days in a year. Don't choose a brass band paper—you'll have to live with it.

A startling effect will strike you as pleasing, at first, but you'll tire of it sooner than of some quiet design. Of all colors used Green, in various shades, is the safest, as Green will harmonize with nearly every other color. Browns and Greys follow closely for first choice.

Next week I'll give some of my ideas about different rooms.

Any information I can give anyone at any time I shall be glad to give.

All my new papers are in, and why not paper now, while you can get good help. Think it over and call at to William John Spearing, of Cornwall. The bride was given away by her father, and wore a gown of ivory silk trimmed with Valenciennes allover. Her only ornament was a gold locket and chain, the gift of the groom. The bridesmaids were Miss Ruby Buck, Sydenham, and Miss Pearl Richards, Kingston, and the groomsmen, John Fitchett, Parma. The groom presented the bridesmaids with lockets and chains, and the groomsmen with a gold tie pin. After the ceremony the guests, numbering about fifty, repaired to the dining-room where a sumptuous repast was served. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents. The happy couple left on the morning train amid showers of rice and good wishes to spend their honeymoon in Toronto and other points along the route. The bride's travelling dress was all wool Veneian cloth, trimmed with silk allover and applique, and white picture hat.

NEWBURGH.

Newburgh has at last a chartered bank. A branch of the Standard bank has been established in C. H. Finkle's new building. A staff of three men will be maintained, two already having arrived.

The managers of the skating rink held a successful carnival last Thursday night, there being many very attractive and humorous disguises. The prize for the best lady costume was awarded to Miss Pearl Paterson, and the prize for the best lady and gentlemen skaters were worthily won by Miss Fies and E. Shorts. The other prizes were won by Roy Storms, as "Old Tuck," and Karl Watson as the "Clown." Another carnival will be held on the 29th.

The debate at the Epworth League on Monday night, "Resolved that foreign mission work is more important to the church than home mission work," was well chosen and also well debated. Those participating won great praise. The decision was given in favor of the negative, the crowning point being forcibly brought out by the latest speaker on the negative side, namely, Edgar Sexsmith. These making short speeches of commendation were: Mr. Hiley, of the Standard Band; Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, and D. A. Nesbit, P. S. I.

A hockey match of unusual interest is to be played on Wednesday between the ladies of Napanee and of Newburgh. A series of matches were played last year and it is the intention of the ladies to continue the same this year in hope that the interest of last year has not abated.

The board of education for 1909 was organized on Wednesday evening. C. H. Finkle was re-elected chairman by acclamation, as a reward of very efficient service in this capacity during the past year. E. Gaudier was re-appointed secretary-treasurer.

A large number were admitted into full membership of the Methodist church last Sunday as a result of the recent successful revivals. It being the regular quarterly service, a large number from the different appointments were here in attendance. The pastor, Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, preached a forcible sermon.

Miss Anna Sutton left on Sunday to attend business college in Kingston; also Miss (Gertie) Nesbitt, to attend business college in Belleville.

W. P. and Miss Derocoe, of Napanee, spent last Wednesday with relatives in the 'burgh.

MARLBANK.

We regret to be called on this week to announce the death of William Kimmitt. Deceased was a most estimable man and one who had endeared himself to all who had the privilege of knowing him, in fact to know him was to esteem and love him. He had been for a long time a faithful and constant member of the Methodist church where he will be greatly missed. He came here about thirty years ago and since his arrival in this place he has been an unobtrusive, but leading resident, always taking an interest in its affairs and performing a citizens' duties cheerfully and liberally. Successful in business he held the respect and esteem of the whole community. A thorough-going man, the many offices to which he was appointed, was the gift of his brethren, and not of his own seeking. His warm brotherly love, a faithful husband, a loving father and staunch friend. A few months ago he was afflicted with throat trouble, which affliction he bore patiently and without a murmur until the morning of Feb. 7th, when God took him to himself and to his loving wife, who was called away about a year ago. He leaves behind him to mourn his loss three daughters and four sons. Mrs. William McFarlane, Richmond; Mrs. John Schermehorn, Richmond; Bidwell and Wilburt, Shannonville; John, Thomas and Annie, at home. His funeral, which took place on Feb. 9th, was largely attended by a host of sorrowing friends at the Methodist church, Marlbank. Rev. Mr. Dixon who delivered a very touching address from the 14th chapter of John, 1st verse, "Let not your heart be troubled," after which his remains were placed in the vault at Tamworth.

IN MEMORY.

Life was brightened by his presence,
Cheered were all when he was near,
Rays of comfort, hope and glory,
Round him shone so bright and clear.
Soon the cold frost fell upon him,
Withered him one winter's day,
Death tore from us our darling father,
Plucked the rose and left the thorn.

Though his friends were round him watch-

Those who were his joy and pride,
None could stay the fatal message,
Father was taken from our side.

No one saw the soul departing,
As his friends sat all a-gaze,
No one heard the angels voices,
As they called our father home.

Father heard them and he answered,
Rose to join them in the air,
Passed from death to life immortal
To that land that knows no care.

Though our loss has left us grieving,
Though we miss our father's form,
Sweet the thought he now is happy,
Free from life's cold bitter storm.

FIND PLEASURE IN LIFE

Take Life Easy Is Urged as a Cure for Our Troubles.

Beholds the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns, yet your Heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they? — Matthew vi., 2.

That the great teacher knew men well, their weaknesses and their needs, is remarkably shown by his counsel. He had noted the anxiety written in their faces. Their duties, their business, their personal afflictions weighed down the uplift of their hearts. And how much more He would have observed the same aspect to-day. Life then was simple and free compared with the present. Social conditions have grown so complex that it is hard to keep from being under stress. If one looks at the multitudes of persons who meet on our streets, every one seems in a hurry, as if bearing a strain. Life is not being lived easily and naturally, but under a pressure—almost painfully. Even the faces of the young reveal this severe conception of life.

New Christ considered this a distorted, needless and unhappy thing. And so He calls men to look at the freedom and of the caroling birds—so much wiser in their simplicity than they in all their anxious forethought and strain. How, then, can we avoid this error and take life easily and untrammelled?

Love your work. Do not think that every one else has an easier calling than you have. Most of us have found the labor fitted to our hand, and, remembering that work is life's chief business, we should take delight in it. Throw away all ambition beyond that of doing your day's work well. Exercise neighborliness, feel kindly to your brother man, show an interest in his success, live and let live. Find pleasure in life and interest in others. It is our selfishness that accounts for much of our stress. Were we satisfied with our portion instead of cherishing a grasping spirit we would find life a far less thorny road. He who takes time to do a kindly action lightens his own task and illumines his own.

Again, have some innocent recreation. It is the greatest error to confound religion with abstinence and austerity. The church has never made the mistake of opposing harmless pleasures. Those Christian people who have done so have sadly misrepresented it.

Never work over evils to come. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Far more troubles are suffered in imaginations than in reality. Let us hope for the best instead of dreading the worst. Never bear more than one trouble at a time. Some people bear three kinds—all they have had, all they have now and all they expect to have. Let us not, then, suffer from

IMAGINARY SORROWS.

And when troubles do come bear them patiently. Patience is as a case of armor around the heart which deadens the blows inflicted on it. Impatience not only strips off the covering, but lays bare the very quick in all its sensitiveness of nerve. To bear evils with patience extracts from them their sharpest thorns and gathers from them the sweetest graces of temper.

But the chief means of taking life easily is that to which the Master here points us. It is the lesson taught by the birds. They are by no means idle. They work from morning until night. But their activity is without care. Their life is free, joyous, unburdened by anxiety—a glad song, ceaseless song and yet your heavenly father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they? Let us then have faith in God. Let us do our work and trust the rest to Him.

27. Set them before the council—Examined them and gave them a hearing before the Sanhedrin.

28. We strictly charged you—Ordinarily any law-abiding Jewish citizen would give careful heed to instructions emanating from the Sanhedrin, which was the highest source of authority among the Jews in all matters not specifically reserved unto themselves by the Romans.

29. Peter and the apostles—Peter was spokesman, but others seconded and affirmed what he said.

30. Raised up Jesus—In the sense of appointing him to the special work and ministry which he fulfilled. The expression does not in this case relate to the resurrection.

Whom ye slew—The final responsibility for the death of Jesus rested with the Jewish authorities, who were instrumental in bringing it about, even though the death sentence had been pronounced by a Roman governor and executed by Roman soldiers.

Hanging him on a tree—Putting him to death by the most ignominious of all forms of execution.

31. With—Or, "at."

32.—Following some early authorities, this verse may also be rendered, "And we are witnesses of these things in him, and the Holy Spirit," etc., or, "And we are witnesses in him of these things and God hath given the Holy Spirit to them that obey him." The whole verse emphasizes the apostolic witnessing and the Holy Spirit as the secret of the life and power in believers. This also is the keynote of the entire narrative of Acts.

33. Cut to the heart—Conscience-smitten, and, since unrepentant, angered by the fearless accusation of Peter and his companions.

34. A Pharisee, named Gamaliel, a doctor of the law—The descendant of a distinguished family of Jewish scholars; the son of Rabbi Simeon, and the grandson of Hillel, the founder of the liberal school of Jewish thought among the Pharisees. The Gamaliel here mentioned is known as Gamaliel I. to distinguish him from his own grandson bearing the same name. So great was his scholarship that he was the first of seven eminent Jewish theologians to receive a title of "Rabban," which means "Our Rabbi, or Master," and indicated that the person receiving the title belonged to the entire nation rather than to any particular school.

35. Theudas—Another Theudas is mentioned by Josephus, the celebrated Jewish historian (A. D. 38-109), as one who led an unsuccessful revolt against the Roman authorities about A. D. 44-45 which was some fifteen years after the events here recorded.

36. Judas of Galilee—Another unsuccessful revolutionist, of whom there were many during the period of Roman supremacy and just prior to the final destruction of Jerusalem in A. D. 70.

In the days of the enrollment—An enrollment or "census taking" which occurred A. D. 6-8, also mentioned by Josephus. The census here referred to should be clearly distinguished from the earlier enrollment mentioned in Luke 2, as occurring at the time of the birth of Jesus.

37. To him they agreed—The fact

40. To him they agreed—The fact that Gamaliel's sober counsel outweighed the impulsive anger of his fellow-members of the Sanhedrin in a testimony to the regard in which he was held by this supreme ecclesiastical body of the Jewish people.
Beat them—By way of a more emphatic warning that they desist from their public teaching and cease to speak in the name of Jesus any further.
42. Preach—Greek, "bring good tidings."

THE SACRED GOOSE.

Figures of Fowl Indispensable at Chinese Wedding.

It was J. G. Frazer of the Golden Bough who suggested that the reverence felt for various creatures in various parts of the world is a survival of totemism, says the Pall Mall Gazette. Plenty of evidence has accumulated since then. Caesar mentions, as schoolboys recollect, that the inhabitants of Britain might not eat the hare, the cock and the goose. In the second case the superstition is quite lost probably, but legendary records keep the memory of it in Ireland. But of the other examples enough can be found even at the present day. There is a "Goose Fair" at Great Crosby, in Lancashire, so called apparently because goose is rigorously forbidden. It is even asserted broadly that the inhabitants think the goose "too sacred" to eat—or did not so long ago. The same feeling ruled in the Hebrides and other parts of Scotland.

No one believes at the present day that the Capitol was saved by geese or any other means, but if the story is not true it becomes all the more significant in the folklorist's point of view, as showing that the bird was specially revered in the primitive age of Rome. The Crusaders under Walter the Penniless, 400,000 souls, as we are assured, piously followed a goose and a goat marching in the van, and a terrible mess those holy animals led them into. In Egypt the goose was the emblem of Seb, father to Osiris; a precious figure of it is extant, inscribed: "The good Goose greatly beloved."

It was the national flag of Burma and of Kandy, Ceylon. Wherever Buddhism rules the goose is venerated. Therefore it is a leading motif in the art of Japan, and a symbol of peace and happiness in China. Figures of geese are as indispensable at a Chinese wedding as is bride cake with us. In both countries, as also in Burma and Siam, weights are made in the shape of a goose as a token of good faith, though the connection is not obvious; but in ancient Egypt the same custom ruled, and Layard found goose weights among his first discoveries at Nineveh. A row of gigantic geese surrounds the great Buddhist temple of Anajapoor. The devout cherish a fond fancy that all geese perform an aerial pilgrimage to the holiest of lakes in the Himalayas every year, transporting the sins of the neighborhood; returning with a new stock of inspiration for the encouragement of local piety.

Lesson VII. The Apostles Imprisoned. Golden Text.

Matt. 5: 10.

Verse 17. The high priest—Caiaphas, who was the officially recognized incumbent of the office, and who held office till the year A. D. 37.

All they that were with him—In sympathy and in partisan affiliation. The reference is to the whole Sadducee party, which lent its support to the high priestly family.

The sect of the Sadducees—The Sadducees were the aristocratic party, fewer in number, richer, less rigidly legalistic, and less strict in their habits of life than the Pharisees. From the latter they differed also in the fact that they did not believe in a future life, nor in the existence of angels, etc. They did not accept the traditional interpretation of the law as insisted upon by scribes and rabbis. They were in league with the Herodian and other ruling families and therefore more influential in religious and civil affairs in the councils of the Sanhedrin as long as the Jewish state existed. But with the downfall of that state at the time of the destruction of Jerusalem their power and influence came to an end, and they soon disappeared from history.

18. Laid hands on—Arrested. In public ward—Under guard in the public place in which offenders and criminals were usually kept in jail.

19. An angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors—This supernatural intervention on behalf of the apostles came as if by way of protest against the hostility of the Sadducees who believed neither in angels nor spirits nor a future life. Our author in this same chapter freely acknowledges the intervention of Gamaliel and its effect, but he is here speaking of a supernatural occurrence which it is impossible to explain away.

20. All the words of this life—The whole gospel message relating both to the Christian life and its future glorious consummation.

21. The council—The Sanhedrin. The senate—The older men.

22. These words—The report of the officers concerning the mysterious escape of the prisoners.

Perplexed—whereunto this would grow—We note that when the apostles are at last brought again before the Sanhedrin the members of the council carefully avoid asking them any questions concerning the manner in which they had escaped from custody.

23. The men whom ye put in the prison—The arrest and imprisonment of the apostles were publicly known. Their prompt reappearing in the temple with undaunted courage in the proclamation of their message could not but reflect unfavorably upon the Jewish authorities who had publicly undertaken to interfere with and put an end to their teaching.

24. Without violence—Because of the great popularity of the apostles. The latter, we note, did not resist arrest.

SPEND MONEY ON DISPLAY

THESE ARE THE DAYS OF HIGH LIVING IN EUROPE.

Londoners Lead in Luxury—Even Poor Classes Attempt to Imitate Them.

The astonishing increase in luxury which is so striking a feature of the present day life was the subject of conversation the other evening at a small exclusive club frequented by diplomats in London, England. One member of the British service spoke strongly of the ruinous expense of English social life to-day.

"Up to a quarter of a century ago," he said, "our habits were simple; even the rich made no great show. When I began to stay in the country houses in the seventies, the way of living was plain and unpretentious.

OLD TIME FRUGALITY.

"Who nowadays would have the courage to offer his guests boiled eggs and cold ham for breakfast on a hot day, a dish of cold meats and cheese for lunch and a dinner of four or five courses all told? What woman in society nowadays would be content to allow herself $600 a year dress allowance? An aunt of mine, with one of the greatest titles, and one time in Queen Victoria's household, never exceeded that amount.

"To the rich, it does not matter what they spend on their personal pleasures, but when you find men earning from $5,000 to $10,000 a year spending all in a mad endeavor to do just as the rich do, to drive motor cars, to eat at the most expensive restaurants, to keep a number of servants and consume the most expensive wines and cigars, then you may be sure the country suffers.

ENGLISH WORST OF ALL.

"I don't believe," continued this diplomat, who is familiar with the social life of all great capitals, "that in any other country you find this tendency among the people of moderate income so marked as here. In St. Petersburg the dissipation among the upper classes is carried to amazing lengths, and in New York the millionaires fly their money about as if it burnt their hands. In Vienna there is a great deal of gambling and wildness generally, but only among the aristocracy. In Paris there are plenty of chances to live riotously, but you seldom see the bourgeoisie taking them."

The same story of extravagant luxury comes from Berlin. Buelow's renewed warnings to the Prussian diet against the evils of extravagance came at a moment when the German people were indulging in perhaps the most luxurious week in their history.

IN OTHER COUNTRIES.

The round of court festivities now is in full swing in Berlin, and is accompanied by display without a parallel in the German capital. The magnificent jewels and dresses at the imperial drawing room represent the high water mark era of luxury towards which "New Germany" has been advancing in the past few years.

The Chancellor's first appeal in November last for simplicity and BLAZE 1,800 FEET HIGH.

And Above it a Column of Smoke Rose to 9,000 Feet.

The greatest oil fire in history is supposed to have been the fire which by a conservative estimate destroyed more than 5,000,000 barrels of oil last year in the San Geronimo field near Tampico, Mexico.

The oil stratum was struck at a depth of 1,840 feet in a six inch cased well. The torrent of oil burst forth and was quickly followed by a blow out of gas which opened a big orifice in the earth's surface, swallowing up the derrick and whole drilling outfit, including the engine and boiler. The gas and oil were ignited from the fire under the boiler and the great fire was in this manner started.

It burned for sixty-two days. The vortex or crater through which the oil poured was gradually enlarged until it was more than 500 feet wide. A rim of rocks and earth was formed around its outer edge resembling a volcano's crater. According to the Technical World the blaze extended to a height of from 1,400 to 1,800 feet and the column of black smoke rose above it to a height of about 9,000 feet. On top of the smoke rested a great white cloud of vapor which was estimated to extend skyward to an additional height of 7,000 feet. The blaze could extinguishing work.

The great oil fire was extinguished by means of six centrifugal pumps which were kept constantly busy for two weeks throwing mud and water into the crater. Heavy discharges of dynamite around the rim of the orifice also aided in the extinguishing work.

Shortly after the flames were put out the oil burst forth again in greater volume than ever and its output was estimated at 150,000 barrels a day. It has been a difficult problem to care for the oil. The Mexican Government sent several hundred soldiers to the scene to assist the owners of the well in building earthen reservoirs for temporary storage of the product. The oil overflowed these reservoirs and large quantities escaped into the San Geronimo River and Lake Tamiahua.

AWAITED DEATH IN A GRAVE.

Japanese Youth's Attempt to Bury Himself Alive.

A youth of Kobe, Japan, who sought to commit suicide by burying himself alive and paid an accomplice 25 cents to spade the earth upon his coffin achieved some degree of notoriety even in Japan, where new things are happening every day. He failed of his original purpose, however.

A policeman was strolling along the bank of the Minatogawa River outside of Kobe one day last month when he happened to spy a joint of bamboo pipe sticking a few inches above a mound of fresh earth. Being a Japanese and also a policeman, his curiosity was especially keen. He looked down the bamboo pipe, but could see nothing.

Then he began to dig around the pipe. He had a considerable wrench put on his nerves when a voice came out of the end of the pipe right at his ear:

"Honorably condescend to go away and permit me to die peacefully."

But the policeman did not go. He dug some more and finally unearthed a pine box, the length of a man's

ATTACK ON KING EDWARD.

Austrian Paper says His Policy Almost Resulted in War.

The most remarkable demonstrations of hatred of England continue in Austria.

King Edward's forthcoming visit to Paris and Naples has aroused the Vienna Mittagzeitung to a furious attack on his Majesty. This journal declares that the King's influence, having diminished in Turkey and the Balkans, now that Austria has come to an understanding with Turkey, "this crowned agent-provocateur is again starting on his journeys in order to realize the dream of his life—the destruction of the triple alliance." The article continues:

"King Edward's policy has already nearly resulted in causing the most awful war in the history of the world. Are there no means to prevent his attempts to begin this game all over again? What does King Edward want to do in Paris and Naples, and on a Turkish warship?"

The Neue Freie Presse also renews its almost-daily attacks on English foreign policy.

The reason for Austria's Anglophobia is the discovery that England could not be left out of account in the troubles in the Near East, but insisted on maintaining her rights as a signatory to the Berlin Treaty to protect the new constitutional regime in Turkey against Austrian aggression. This was not expected by Baron von Aehrenthal when he laid plans for the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Thus the various recent reverses to Austrian policy, such as the necessity of agreeing to a conference of the powers being held and the payment of an indemnity to Turkey, have embittered Austrian public opinion, which makes England the scapegoat for everything.

Great Britain is accused of bribing the Turks to maintain the boycott and egging on the Servians against Austria. The public believes in these untrue charges. By those who understand the situation the feeling is one of fury that Austria has been balked in her original plans. The failure of them must, however, be laid, if it were not foreseen, to the short-sighted policy of the Austrian Foreign Office.

in full swing in Berlin, and is accompanied by display without a parallel in the German capital. The magnificent jewels and dresses at the imperial drawing room represent the high water mark era of luxury towards which "New Germany" has been advancing in the past few years.

The Chancellor's first appeal in November last for simplicity and economy fell on deaf ears. The wealthy classes prepared for the current season on a scale unprecedented. Magnificent dinners and balls were arranged with disregard to expense.

MILLIONS SPENT IN JEWELS.

The gowns are more costly than any before worn in Germany. One firm sold nearly half a million dollars' worth of pearls alone in the past few weeks. Among them was a single necklace costing $125,000, which a Berlin tradesman bought for his wife. Sums were spent on luxuries of the table and actual fortunes were lavished on dress. People who used to be satisfied with a light supper costing five marks with a bottle or two of inexpensive wines now insist upon a meal of seven to ten courses, with wine of good vintage, costing 25 to 50 marks a cover, the cigars selling at seven marks apiece are frequently called for.

GAMBLING CRAZE.

Gambling in clubs and private houses is said to be taking place for incredibly high stakes. The desire to spend money lavishly infects all classes and the attempt to ape the extravagances of the rich is believed to be bringing thousands of moderately well to do to the brink of financial ruin, while scores of wealthier citizens are said to be living beyond their means.

WATERWAYS OF NATIONS.

There is Going on Remarkable Development in Germany.

Coincidentally with the rise of Germany's sea power there is going on a remarkable development of the nation's waterways. Berlin is now ambitious to be a seaport, and a project for a maritime canal from the Baltic sea is under way. The Kaiser Wilhelm canal, but a few years old, has already been found inadequate and a project has been adopted to double the width and increase the depth to forty feet at a cost of $1,000,000 per mile. Germany's example is felt by her neighbors. Brussels, Ghent and Bruges, are engaged on similar projects.

Russia has an elaborate project in view to enlarging the waterways from the Baltic sea to the Caspian, a project not unlike that from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. Throughout an extended tour of the Russian waterways, from the Baltic sea to the Volga river, J. A. Ackerson, the St. Louis engineer and student of inland waterways, found a continuous stream of traffic.

Great Britain has a royal commission appointed for the purpose of ascertaining the feasibility of developing an elaborate system of waterways, larger than the total amount expended on American rivers and harbors up to date.

In the River Lek, Holland, and its connecting canal to Amsterdam, the traffic amounts to over 80,000 vessels of all kinds per annum.

Then he began to dig around the pipe. He had a considerable wrench put on his nerves when a voice came out of the end of the pipe right at his ear:

"Honorably condescend to go away and permit me to die peacefully."

But the policeman did not go. He dug some more and finally unearthed a pine box, the length of a man's body and about three feet wide. The bamboo pipe led through an opening into the box. The policeman pried off the cover of the box, securely nailed down, and dumped the self-appointed corpse out.

Yamada Katsutaro, the man who would thus have died, told the prefect of police that he had wanted to die in a seemly fashion because he was out of work. The lack of food had suggested to him the practicability of starving himself to death, but in order to be sure that he should accomplish this purpose he had determined to bury himself in a securely nailed coffin and await the ravages of hunger. He didn't want to suffocate first, hence the bamboo pipe.

The day before the policeman discovered him, Yamada said, he procured the box and the service of a coolie. Then he dug the hole out on Egeyama and after giving the coolie his obi and fifty sen, his last bit of money, he was nailed up in his coffin, lowered into the grave and covered under six feet of soil. Yamada promised never to try burying himself alive again and the police let him go.

GAVE SKIN TO HELP WIDOW.

Life of a Factory Girl Saved by Wealthy Women.

The Misses Zoufial, Prechal and Karl, three young Bohemian girls of good family, underwent an operation at Prague, Austria, from philanthropic motives.

A young woman named Fritsch, employed in a Prague factory, recently had the misfortune to be completely scalped, owing to her hair being caught in a machine. To save her life, it was necessary to transplant fresh skin from another person to her head. Her employers advertised a reward of $100 to any person who would provide the necessary supply, and no fewer than 600 persons offered themselves at the hospital for the purpose. The doctors chose a poor widow, who required the money for the education of her children.

The three young women mentioned heard of the case, and informed the doctors that they would each give some of their own skin for nothing on condition that the widow should receive the $100. Their offer was accepted, and the three had pieces of skin from the soles of their feet removed and grafted on the factory girl's head. The operation was completely successful.

FOR SLEEPY TRAVELLERS.

A French engineer, M. Edouard Cros, has submitted to the French railway companies an invention designed to relieve drowsy travellers of the fear of being carried past their destination. The invention consists of a slip of paper on which is a dial. The passenger writes his destination on the slip, marks the time he is due on the dial, and attaches the paper to a part of the carriage where it can be easily seen by the railway servants, whose duty it will be to tell the traveller when he has arrived.

SHAVES WITH KNIFE.

Quick-shaving Champion has Choice of Implements.

Mr. Robert Hardie is the quick-shaving champion of England. Mr. Hardie's record of shaving five men in one minute fifteen seconds, stood for some years, but not long ago the champion of the razor thought he would try a new and better times, so he managed to shave six men in one minute twenty-nine seconds. Mr. Hardie a little time back issued a challenge to the world for $2,500, and this money can be won by anyone who will take up the cudgels at either quick or blindfold shaving and is able to beat the existing champion's times.

Mr. Hardie can shave one man, no matter how harsh his beard, in twelve seconds, or he will allow himself to be blindfolded and then make a clean job of it in twenty-seven seconds. Besides these times, which are accomplished by the aid of an ordinary razor, Mr. Hardie will give any man a perfectly satisfactory shave with the aid of a carving knife in forty-five seconds, and with a penknife in twenty-eight seconds.

RETURN OF VEGETATION

The interesting phenomenon of the return of vegetation to the slopes of Mont Pelee, whose terrible eruption in 1902 destroyed the city of St. Pierre and laid waste the greater part of Martinique, can now be observed. Wherever watercourses and the trampling of horses and cattle have broken up the lava crust, plants are reappearing. In some districts, where only a layer of hot ashes was deposited, the trees and shrubs retained their underground life, and now the growth of the roots is breaking up the crust and forming it into humus. The new vegetation which is gradually creeping back up the mountain comprises the castor-oil plant, the indigo plant, the sensitive plant, guinea-grass, silver ferns and other plants.

GROW TALL IN THE COUNTRY.

According to the investigations of Doctor Deniker, well-known for his anthropologic studies, the influences of city life tend toward a decrease of human stature. It is away from the large cities that the beneficial effects of the general amelioration of social conditions and improvements in hygiene of modern times most clearly manifest themselves by distinct increase of stature. This increase has been marked among several of the European races during the last half-century. Where the people are subjected to urban influences the gain is less notable.

RICH ENGLISH BARONET

SIR RICHARD SUTTON IS ONLY EIGHTEEN YEARS OF AGE.

Value of His London Estate Has Enormously Increased of Late Years.

Sir Richard Sutton, the richest baronet in England, who is but eighteen years of age, will shortly become still more wealthy through the falling in of the leases of many of his houses in Stratton and Curzon streets. Great rows of chambers, flats and shops will undoubtedly replace the existing small dwellings and rental value will go up with a bound as was the case in Down street a few years ago.

For eighteen years Sir Richard's enormous wealth has been growing by accumulation. His wants have been few and his expenditures but a small fraction of his

IMMENSE ANNUAL INCOME.

He was a posthumous child, being born two months after the death of his father.

Just how tremendous his wealth is has probably been more nearly gauged by matchmaking mammas with schoolroom daughters than by anyone else, though anyone who has ever visited London can give a fair guess of its magnitude when it is mentioned that to this youth belong the north side of Piccadilly and nearly all the streets off it—Sackville street, Vigo street, Bolton street, Clarges street, Half Moon street, part of Curzon street. In fact, all fashionable Mayfair which does not belong to the Duke of Westminster is, with the exception of a small property which belongs to Lord Howe of the Penn-Curzon family, after whom Curzon street was named, owned by Sir Richard Sutton. There is also a large district of property north of Regent street which STANDS IN HIS NAME.

When his father, Sir Richard Sutton, died in February, 1891, the deceased's brother, Arthur Edwin, was the heir, but it was decided that the title and heirship should remain in abeyance for a few months and when in the following April Lady Sutton gave birth to a son it was to the title and vast estates of his father that this little infant succeeded whilst his uncle still kept his old role of presumptive heir.

Whether this young boy will take after his father is still a matter of conjecture. Although always rather delicate, he is a fine-spirited lad with extremely warm blood attachments.

AIMED AT BRITISH RULE

PAMPHLETS ARE DISTRIBUTED THROUGHOUT INDIA.

One Refers to King Edward as a "Tyrant"—Printed in Europe.

One of the most serious phenomena in the agitation against British rule with which the Viceroyal Government of India has to contend is the distribution broadcast among the natives of seditious pamphlets. It is no secret that the subversive movement is fostered and encouraged by highly intelligent and often well connected Indians who are studying at English universities or are for other reasons staying in England.

Quantities of seditious leaflets printed in Europe are shipped to Bombay and Calcutta, whence they are clandestinely distributed throughout the interior. A copy of one particularly violent anti English pamphlet, obviously printed in England, has just been received in London. It is a counterblast to King Edward's friendly message of last November to the princes and people of India.

A TYPICAL PAMPHLET.

The pamphlet, entitled "Two Historic Documents," refers to the King throughout as "the tyrant" and begins.

"The tyrant has issued a new edition of the proclamation of 1858, which was styled by fools 'the Magna Charta of India.' When the so-called Queen's proclamation was first published, in 1858, our patriotic ancestors were still carrying on that glorious revolutionary struggle for the liberty of Hindustan. They issued a counter proclamation to warn Indians against the danger of submitting to the Feringhi (English) rule through delusions and false hopes. The tyrant has repeated his falsehood—let us repeat our ancestors' prophetic warning!"

SANGUINARY WISH QUOTED.

Then the paper quotes at length the replies made by two prominent leaders of the rebellion to Queen Victoria's proclamation half a century ago, one of them being the notorious Bahadur Khan, who was hanged in 1860 for the murder of many English women and children, and whose last words were: "I have killed a thousand more."

The pamphlet, which is signed by "Bande Mataram" (Hail the Motherland) concludes. "Blessed be the day when a United India raises up the flag of Liberty from the dust of 1857 and plants it triumphantly on the top of the Himalayas to the honor of man and the glory of God."

There is a small village in Wales which is the Utopia of the Suffragettes and which figures largely in their arguments at the present time. It is Llangwm, a little oyster town on an estuary of the great harbor of Milford Haven.

When you speak of Llangwm you mean the Llangwm woman. It is she who goes out oyster fishing. It is she who, quaintly dressed in short homespun skirt, felt hat and red shawl and with a donkey pannier, goes about the countryside selling fish and oysters, and it is she who holds the purse and dresses the family.

She holds her superior position by physical force. She is a match for a college oarsman in points, a waterman in strength, and any fisherman around the coasts of four nations in undauntedness in a high sea or in net handling. Mentally she is quite up to the times.

Llangwm women were the first to apply for small holdings. Llangwm women have banished the beer saloon and there are many Llangwm women awaiting old age pensions.

In politics these women are Liberals. Their lives are severe and Spartan. Their religion is of the same breed as that of Cromwell's Ironsides.

The Llangwm man is somewhere in the back ground. He is a domestic animal. He has not even a claim to his own name. He is "Mary Palmer's man" or "Bessie Llewellyn's son." There is no exasperatingly offhand talk of the "missus" or the "wife," as among the Englishmen of the same position in life. The lot of a Llangwm man is not altogether happy, though he is a well domesticated animal.

3-YEAR MUSICAL PRODIGY.

Men of Science Astounded at His Marvelous Execution.

An infant prodigy, who may be regarded as the most wonderful of her kind, gave a piano recital in the Bluthnerschen Hall, at Leipzig, Germany, the other night before an audience consisting largely of musical critics and men of science.

The prodigy is a little girl named Pillar Osorio, aged 3 years. She will celebrate her fourth birthday within a few weeks. She is a step-sister to another infantile prodigy, a little boy named Pepito Arriom, whose wonderful talent was first discovered by Prof. Arthur Nikisch.

At the recital Pillar Osorio played a number of classical pieces with astonishing verve and correctness of execution and touch. Her achievement was all the more remarkable because she played without a single note before her, having learned solely by ear and memory.

Little Pillar Osorio's musical talent is regarded as not only artistic, but the scientists are interested in how a brain of a three-year-old child can be capable of the mental effort, required to grasp all the intricacies of the classical pieces which the infant prodigy played correctly before a critical audience.

A suggestion has been made in scientific circles to appoint a committee, which should be entrusted with the task of investigating Pillar Osorio's ancestry, to ascertain, if possible, any facts bearing on hereditary transmission of talent. So far as is known, neither parents nor grand-parents displayed any unusual musical ability.

INVENTORS POORLY PAID.

Admiralty Niggardly in Its Rewards to Clever Workmen.

The Lords of the British Admiralty issued a circular to the officials of the various naval dockyards some time ago in which a system of payment for suggestions made by the workmen employed in all departments was introduced. This, it was hoped, would encourage the men, but the scheme is now practically defunct owing to the extraordinary parsimony of the Admiralty officials.

The workmen manifest keenness in applying their minds to mechanical appliances for saving labor and cost, but after waiting for months received a few paltry dollars as their rewards. Some of the inventions are valuable and will save the country large sums of money, but in no case has any man received more than $25 for his ingenuity. The men complain that they have spent their spare time in patient study to receive in return grants which are ridiculous.

As an instance of the Admiralty's niggardliness one man submitted an invention which enables a diver in difficulties under water to attach another air pipe and cut the pipe which is entangled in wreckage. Until this ingenious device was submitted such a thing was thought impossible. The Admiralty officials adopted the idea and awarded the clever inventor the sum of $15.

GERMANY'S IRON DISCIPLINE.

Sentry Refused to Rescue Drowning Man.

An extraordinary example of German military discipline which occurred near Bronikowen is attracting public attention and has given rise to a discussion as to whether or not it would be desirable to allow soldiers doing sentry duty liberty of action in cases where human life is endangered, says the London Standard.

A wealthy land owner of Bronikowen, Herr Arthur Kriede, was skating on Sensburg Lake when the ice broke and he fell through into the water. Close at hand a soldier was doing sentry duty and Kriede shouted to the soldier for help and begged him to render assistance. Military regulations, however, prohibit a soldier doing sentry duty from leaving his post under any circumstances.

As this particular soldier could not render assistance to Kriede without leaving his post and thereby infringing military regulations, he remained where he was and watched Kriede drown before his eyes. There were several long poles lying near the spot, and the soldier need only have walked to the bank of the lake and held one of the poles to the drowning man in order to effect his rescue.

Over Precipice.

A terrible Alpine tragedy has occurred on the Piz Danis Scharans, where Dr. John Evan Spicer, a London physician, was killed by an avalanche, and his younger brother, Gerald Spicer, rescued half-frozen and in a seriously injured condition, after being left for many hours in the snow.

Dr. Spicer and his brother, both expert Alpinists, had stayed at the Schweizerhaus Hotel, at Lenzerheide, for several weeks, being among the most popular visitors in that Winter resort.

On Wednesday morning they left their hotel on skis, without guides, intending to climb the Piz Danis Scharans, which is nearly 3,000 feet high, in order to ski into the Domleschg Valley.

When near the summit they were suddenly enveloped in a blinding snowstorm, and lost their way. They wandered on to the extremely dangerous slope of the Domleschg, and there attempted to shelter themselves from the wind.

While climbing to the slope they were swept away by an avalanche. Dr. Spicer was carried a distance of 600 feet into the Scharans gorge, the younger brother managed to save himself. He clung to the slope for hours calling vainly for help and unable to move.

When the brothers did not return to their hotel the other guests became alarmed. The proprietor collected a search party of ten guides, who were joined by thirty Englishmen, who are members of the Rhaetia Alpine Club.

Thursday afternoon they found Gerald Spicer, who explained the disaster as best he could. The body of his brother was discovered afterward, half buried in the snow.

Mr. Spicer was carried to Lenzerheide with great difficulty, and there attended by a physician. In addition to his great exhaustion, he is suffering from frost-bite, and it is feared that his left foot will have to be amputated.

SAVED PATIENT, LOST EYE.

Act of Heroism Which French President Recognized.

An unassuming act of self-sacrifice on the part of a young French medical student, M. Louis Bazy, has just secured for him the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

M. Bazy, who is a son of a well-known French surgeon, was assisting his chief in a Paris hospital. During an operation a quantity of virulent matter suddenly escaped from a wound into M. Bazy's eye.

The only hope of saving his sight was for the eye to be immediately treated, but this would have necessitated leaving the operation table and abandoning the operation, with probably fatal consequences to the patient. The young man without a moment's hesitation told his chief to proceed with the operation, and he did not disinfect his eye until the work was over and the patient safe.

A few days later it was found that the eye was infected, and after six months of great suffering it was found necessary to remove it.

President Fallieres, hearing of the incident, immediately decided that young M. Bazy should be decorated. The President said he desired to show that the wound received by the doctor attending the poor was no less glorious than the injury sustained by the soldier on the field of battle.

and poverty of thousands.

MYSTERY OF LONELY ISLAND.

Three Sportsmen Found Dead With no Sign of Violence.

A crime, the solution of which would puzzle a Sherlock Holmes, had occurred on Sand Island, in the Caspian Sea.

Three wealthy residents of Baku went shooting on the island, but as they failed to return, a party started in search of them. Their dead bodies were found close to the shore, carefully laid out, each with the hands crossed over the breast. They had not been robbed of their money or jewelry, but their arms, consisting of double-barreled fowling pieces, revolvers and hunting knives, were missing.

No sign of a struggle could be found, the bodies were not scratched or bruised, and the hunting costumes were not disarranged. A boat on which they had proceeded to the island was found, keel upmost, on the strand, where apparently it had been placed for safety. Two horses were found grazing close by, but to whom they belong is a mystery.

A few yards from where the bodies lay was a newly turned mound of earth. Two feet down in the mound a strangely cut, white, highly polished stone, weighing 40 pounds, was found. This stone is of foreign origin, and cannot, therefore, have been quarried in the island. A neat Orthodox cross had been chiseled on one of the facets.

It was at first thought that the victims had been poisoned, but a post-mortem examination disclosed no trace of poison or internal injury. The physician who made the autopsy came to the conclusion that the victims had been stifled and the mouth and nose of each of the men had been stopped by murderers.

This theory is scouted by friends and relatives, as all three were in the prime of health, and one of them, M. Krassilnikoff, was a man of herculean build and strength.

OTTAWA NEWS.

The opening of the new Parliament has disclosed some interesting conditions. First and foremost is the admitted fact that the Government has a following and support as strong if not Foster Monopolizing the Time.

Yet another cause, and this is a point upon which the members speak openly—is that Mr. Foster has already monopolized the greater part of the order paper with some thirty motions of one kind and another to the detriment and political injury of others who feel that at least a portion of private members' time should be reserved for the rank and file, whose rights in this particularly respect, have been absolutely ignored.

They Speak Their Minds.

These Conservative members who criticize Mr. Foster's action in this regard are outspoken in their opinion that the presence in the recent campaign of Mr. Foster did much to ruin the chances of Conservative victory. Following close upon the very fact that he purports to be the whole party, and arrogates to himself the right to monopolize the greater portion of the time available to private members, has tended to accentuate the feeling that exists in a very substantial form that he, Mr. Foster, is making himself unduly prominent in the party, and that in consequence the party is the chief sufferer.

The new Parliament may be said to commence with an opposition having trials and troubles of his own. Men who have been weighed in the balance and found wanting, others who are a dead weight on the party, and several whose hold upon political life is so slender, that they are a source of weakness rather than strength.

Internecine Quarrels.

At the very outset there was a difference of opinion as to the attitude the party should assume on the address. Mr. Foster's advice was that the debate should be short so that the Government might be shown to be in a condition of unpreparedness with legislation. Others took the ground that the debate on the address would provide an opportunity to try out the new men, that therefore it should be prolonged.

The result was that between the several factions the Opposition fell flat, and after several attempts on the part of the new men from the West to remember what each had said and repeat it to the House, the Opposition had nothing more to say, and the address was adopted.

British Columbia Deceived.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier made it very clear to the House that the voters of British had been poorly deceived by the Conservative candidates. He opened a telegram read at public meetings in British Columbia, and circulated throughout the province as coming from Mr. Borden, in which that gentleman stated that he was in favor of the absolute exclusion of Asiatics.

[This telegram was published in the Victoria Colonist, the Conservative paper, and read as follows:

"Your message received—the Conservative party stands for a white Canada, the protection of white labor, and the absolute exclusion of Asiatics.

(Sgd.) R. L. BORDEN."

to the British North America Act, which was passed by the Imperial Government and ratified by the Federal House.

The Prime Minister was quite right in saying that the elections in British Columbia had been won by false pretences.

Tories Employ Asiatics.

Every Conservative member from British Columbia advanced the argument that there should be no Asiatics in the province, but when Ralph Smith, the Liberal member from Nanaimo, charged each one of them with being an employer of yellow labor, they were like unto the man who had not on a wedding garment, speechless. Mr. Smith made it very clear that if there is an Asiatic problem in British Columbia today the Conservatives are responsible for it. They not only encouraged the immigration of these people, but they continue to employ them.

The new members from British Columbia do not appear to be familiar with the case at all. No person has informed them that Mr. Borden and Mr. Foster continually pressed the Government to become a party to the Japanese treaty, and when the same came before the House the Conservatives voted for it to a man.

The debate on the address was instructed in many ways. It showed the weakness of the Conservative party as a debating unit, and also afforded an opportunity for the Opposition to cheer the sentiment, uttered by one of themselves, that the choice for Speaker, in the person of Mr. Marcil, had fallen upon the right man. The Toronto News has no following in the House on the position it assumed with regard to Mr. Marcil.

Another Lie Nailed.

A short time ago the Conservative press printed an alleged statement by ex-Chief Justice Tuck of New Brunswick, that he had been offered a knighthood if he would retire from the bench.

The Mail and Empire seized upon this delectable morsel and based many editorials upon it. This, said the paper, is the character of allurement offered to men to make room for needy politicians. Other papers followed upon the same lines, and the public mind was saturated with the idea that a deal of this kind had been attempted.

An unwise Tory, firmly convinced that the story was true—he had read it in the Mail—placed a question on the order paper, and received the following reply from the Prime Minister:

The Government have no such knowledge.

No such offer was made to chief Justice Tuck.

Chief Justice Tuck was not requested by the Government to resign.

The Government was not seeking to appoint any person in Chief Justice Tuck's place.

The Government does not know whether ex-Chief Justice Tuck has denied or not denied the statement attributed to him.

This is an example of Tory misrepresentation sent broadcast throughout the country. Had it not been that a thoughtless Tory asked the question, the truth or otherwise of this incident might never have been known. It will be in order for the Mail and Empire to repair the injury done to the Government and withdraw the comments made upon the presumption that the story commented upon was true. But the Mail and Empire will do no such thing. This paper is not seeking the truth, but something which will lead the people to distrust the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

There is another equally ridiculous statement with regard to Sir Wilfrid Laurier offering Mr. Bourassa three

INDIGESTION ENDS.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little Diapiespin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Billiousness, Heartburn, Water-brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapiespin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangle will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50 cent case of Pape's Diapiespin from your druggist and start taking to-day and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of purgatives or any other assistance.

primarily responsible for it. His contention was that tenders should be opened in public in the presence of three officers of the department. As a matter of fact, the tenders are now opened in the presence of two or more officials and the public are not excluded. The evidence in the public accounts committee last year proved that

The opening of the new Parliament has disclosed some interesting conditions. First and foremost is the admitted fact that the Government has a following and support as strong if not stronger than any which has characterized previous Parliaments.

Secondly, the Conservatives, with slightly augmented numbers, are much weaker as a fighting unit than before.

Tory Jealousies.

In the Conservative ranks there are already heart burnings, jealousies and dissatisfaction. Several new members, not only to the House, but new to political life, have been exalted and honored by seats on the front Opposition bench, and this over the heads of many who have borne the brunt of the fight in days gone by.

This of itself would not be the occasion of rebellion and dissatisfaction, but the men put on the front benches, and other benches, while not the front, yet ahead of old members, have had an opportunity during the debate on the address, and have been found sadly lacking in those essentials which add to the strength of parliamentary debaters. In other words, the new members who have been given seats which confer distinction on the occupant and are supposed to be occupied only by men of extraordinary strength in debate, have failed to make good, and the fact that they have been placed over the heads of others who have done good party work, is resented. In this connection a great deal of bad feeling has been aroused, and the end is not yet.

Another cause for dissatisfaction in Conservative ranks is that certain members of the party have given themselves undue notoriety, and assume to occupy places in the party which are not conceded by the rank and file as being theirs by right of qualification or services rendered.

gentleman stated that he was in favor of the absolute exclusion of Asiatics. [This telegram was published in the Victoria Colonist, the Conservative paper, and read as follows:

"Your message received—the Conservative party stands for a white Canada, the protection of white labor, and the absolute exclusion of Asiatics. (Sgd.) R. L. BORDEN."

Telegram Was Forged.

Mr. Borden said he never sent the telegram; therefore, the obvious inference was that the telegram was forged. This fact did not prevent its use on the public platform, and its circulation throughout the province during the election. This was one of the contributing causes of the defeat of Liberal members in British Columbia.

Another reason was that Conservative speakers invariably charged that the Laurier Government was responsible for the subsidy terms given to British Columbia, whereas the Laurier Government had nothing whatever to do with it. The premiers of the provinces of the Dominion met in convention at Ottawa and decided upon the terms to be given each province. What British Columbia was to receive was settled by this conference, and when the conference reported to the Government what decision had been arrived at, the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier put their finding into effect and arranged for an amendment mentations made upon the presumption that the story commented upon was true. But the Mail and Empire will do no such thing. This paper is not seeking the truth, but something which will lead the people to distrust the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

There is another equally ridiculous statement with regard to Sir Wilfrid Laurier offering Mr. Bourassa three seats unopposed in the House. Some day a self-confident Tory will frame a question on this point and another Tory lie will be exposed.

Judge Cassels' Report.

The report of Judge Cassels has been a great disappointment to the Conservatives in the House. This report has been referred to upon many occasions, and its probable contents used by members of the Opposition, in season and out of season.

The report completely exonerates the Government and every member of it. Mr. Brodeur is commended for taking steps to prevent the abuses which have been practised by officials of the department, acting contrary to orders.

It has been found that men appointed by the former Conservative Government have been unfaithful, and many of them have already been suspended, and some of them will be dismissed. What punishment will be meted out is not yet decided.

Caused Tory Dismay.

This report absolutely endorses the position taken by the Government, which was in short, that the Government could not be held responsible for the actions of a few scoundrels who should never have been retained in the Government employ. That the most the Government could do was to order an investigation to be followed by proportionate action on the result of same.

To the dismay of the Opposition Judge Cassels does not make any reflections upon the Government of the day, and from this time there will be fewer allusions to the work which Judge Cassels has concluded. The Opposition is now attempting to divert attention from the guilty men, men of their own choice and political stripe, by claiming that the Government alone is responsible. This will have no effect upon the country. The Liberal administration is making an honest effort to purge the Service from undesirables, many of whom were foisted on the public service by their Conservative predecessors.

Foster Advertising Dodge.

Mr. Foster has advertised himself at the expense of the country by giving notice of a large number of motions, covering every possible subject. Few of them will ever be debated but they will always be on the order paper until withdrawn and from now until the close of the session they will have to be called in their order. In would appear as if Parliament meets for the express purpose of affording opportunities to Mr. Foster to air his particular hobbies. The House is tired of the man, he has become wearisome to both sides. He assumes to project himself into every discussion as if nothing were complete until he had expressed opinions upon it.

There are so many new men in the House, that the prominence Foster gives himself has been the subject of uncomplimentary comment by members upon both sides. They are wondering how they will ever be able to do anything for their constituents if Mr. Foster is allowed to absorb all the time available to private members. There should be some limit to the number of motions any one man is allowed to make during the session, and the work of the House would be greatly facilitated.

Devil a Saint Would Be.

The first motion introduced by the Opposition was on the subject of tenders, and Dr. Reid of Grenville was primarily responsible for it. His contention was that tenders should be opened in public in the presence of three officers of the department. As a matter of fact, the tenders are now opened in the presence of two or more officials and the public are not excluded. The evidence in the public accounts committee last year proved that tenderers for timber often appeared and were present when the tenders were opened.

The inconsistent feature of this resolution is that the mover of it, Dr. Reid, held out as an inducement in his election that he would be Minister of Marine in the Borden Government and among other things he would buy the old starch factory at Prescott and add it to the Marine premises there. Nothing said about tenders but only vote for me and the property shall be bought and the shareholders made happy. Dr. Reid before the electors of Grenville, and Dr. Reid talking purity and protection of the public interest in the House provides a modern example of Dr. Jeckyll and Mr. Hyde. The House does not, and the public cannot take seriously a resolution of this character when the same is introduced by a man whose political reputation in his own constituency gives the flat contradiction to all his pretences of safeguarding the public purse. Had all the promises made by Dr. Reid during the campaign been carried out in the event of a Conservative victory, the country would have been mulcted in the expense.

Dirty Political Tactics.

The calibre of Mr. Foster was well illustrated in the debate. Mr. Foster revamped the lying affidavit which was used during the campaign against Dr. Pugsley in New Brunswick. Notwithstanding the fact that the very man who made it has since admitted it was false, Mr. Foster thought it right to base an argument upon it. This is the man who acts as a dead weight on the neck of the Conservative party. Nothing is too dirty for him to touch, no argument too unworthy, if it will only answer his purposes. Influential members on his own side of the House openly expressed their disapprobation of his course in this regard. Mr. Foster has a pachydermatous hide, and what would cause another man to blush falls from Foster like water from the back of a duck.

The House affords Mr. Foster the protection of privilege, and he is the first to invoke the protection of the Speaker when attacked by his own weapons, and is the most frequent sinner himself. Mr. Foster may find during a bye-election that an opportunity will be present to cross swords with some who will deal with him as he deals with others, give him some of his own medicine, and this gentleman will find his level. Take from him his vicious tongue and sarcastic manner and nothing remains but an attenuated form and the average of intelligence, with none of the milk of human kindness.

Serious Interruptions.

The truly lazy man is not a common figure in this country, and when he does appear he is not treated with proper respect. Ideal laziness is an art as difficult as playing on the violin. A writer in the Washington Star tells of one member of the Sons of Rest who deserves recognition.

"I s'pose John is still taking life easy?" said the woman in the spring wagon.

"Yes," answered the woman who was carrying an armful of wood. "John has only two regrets in life. One is that he has to wake up to eat, and the other is that he has to quit eating to sleep."

THE CHEROKEE ROSE.

Romantic Indian Legend of This Beautiful Flower.

There is a beautiful romance connected with the Cherokee rose. A young Indian chief of the Seminole tribe was taken prisoner by his enemies, the Cherokees, and doomed to torture, but fell so seriously ill that it became necessary to wait for his restoration to health before committing him to the fire.

As he lay prostrated by disease in the cabin of the Cherokee warrior the daughter of the latter, a young, dark faced maid, was his nurse. She fell in love with the young chieftain and, wishing to save his life, urged him to escape. But he would not do so unless she would flee with him.

She consented. Before they had gone far, impelled by regret at leaving home, she asked permission of her lover to return for the purpose of bearing away some memento of it. So, retracing her footsteps, she broke a sprig from the white rose which climbed up the poles of her father's tent and, preserving it during her flight through the wilderness, planted it by the door of her new home in the land of the Seminoles. And from that day this beautiful flower has always been known throughout the southern states by the name of the Cherokee rose.

Ancestral Pride.

"Ask you still want this genealogy?" asked the man who digs up such things.

The Farmer's Wife

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as attested by the writings of leading teachers and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

DIGNITY OF OWNERSHIP.

The Feeling of Pride That Is Born of Paying Taxes.

"Many a time," said a policeman in the southern part of the city, "when arresting men, especially intoxicated men, I have been told by my prisoner that he was a taxpayer and that he helped pay my wages."

"I always regarded this sort of back talk as merely drunken insolence and never paid much attention to it until about a year ago, when I bought a house and lot and became myself a taxpayer. I had always rented before and never gave a thought to taxes, but as soon as I moved into my own house I began to appreciate the feelings of men who resented arrest because they paid taxes."

"There is certainly a considerable addition to the dignity of the man who helps support the government. He feels a degree of responsibility that a renter or roomer never understands, and my idea is that every man in the country ought to become a taxpayer as soon as he can. And the mere fact that he does help support the government and bears his share of the expense makes him a better citizen. Habitual criminals are rarely taxpayers. They know they may have to run any day and perhaps never come back, so they do not buy real estate, but are roomers and lodgers all their lives."

The "Cat House."

A curious little building stands at the end of a private walk on the shores of the River Orwell, in Suffolk, England. It is known as the "Cat House," for the reason that, in the "good old times," a white cat used to be exhibited at a window visible from the river as a signal to smugglers, who flourished in the locality. When the animal was shown, the "Free Traders," as the contrabandists were euphemistically called, knew that the coast was clear, and promptly sailed up and landed their cargo, secure from the attentions of the "preventives." Near "Cat House" is Downham Reach, which was the scene of some of Margaret Catchpole's most exciting adventures.

Remembered Too Late.

Speaking of the queer doings of absentminded people, the following anecdote is related by The London Globe: "A very irritable man left his house one morning to attend a race meeting some distance off. In order that he might have enough money to pay his hotel bill he tied a sovereign in the corner of his handkerchief. In the train he drew his handkerchief from his pocket and noticed the knot in the corner. 'Now,' he said to himself, 'what was it I wished to remember?' Much thought failed to enlighten him upon the point and at last, in a fit of passion, he hurled the handkerchief out of the window. Then he remembered."

Ladies and Gents.

When I was younger kids were kids in Kansas or in Cadiz. Now all the boys are gentlemen and all the girls ladies. Where are the kids who climbed the trees, the tousled young carousers who got their faces black with dirt and tore their little trousers? Where are the lads who scrapped by rounds while other lads kept tallies, the maids who made their pies of mud and danced in dirty alleys? They're making calf love somewhere now, exchanging cards and kisses. They're all fixed up in Sunday togs, and they are sirs and misses. Real kids have vanished from the world, which fact is surely hades, and all the boys are gentlemen, and all the girls are ladies.—Walt Mason in Emporia Gazette.

A Difficult Examination.

Candidates at the Royal Veterinary college, London, must pass examinations in English grammar and composition, Latin, mathematics and either Greek, a modern language or logic (horse sense?). This from the Metric: "Find the center of gravity of a uniform wire which is bent in such a way that it forms three sides of a square." Once in, the candidate for V. S. has to cover chemistry, physics, biology, botany, histology, physiology, bacteriology, materia medica, toxicology, hygiene, dietetics, clinical medicine, meat inspection and horseshoeing.—Horses, Horsemen and Stable Management.

London on American Clothes.

Observes the London Chronicle: "In London the man who demands respect has his clothes made for him. But no New York man who is not a millionaire or near it buys anything but store clothes. And the ready made clothes, are so standardized that you have but to confess your inches and you are clothed in America."

Sealing Wax Played an Important Part at the Banquet.

In the Pennells' "Life of James MacNeill Whistler" is the story of a dinner given by the eccentric artist in which he was assisted by Mr. Luke Ionides, who describes the banquet:

"I remember calling one early afternoon, when Jimmy was busy putting things straight. He asked me if I had any money. I told him I had 12 shillings. He said that was enough. We went out together, and he bought three chairs at two and sixpence each and three bottles of claret at eighteen-pence each and three sticks of sealing wax of different colors at twopence each. On our return he sealed the top of each bottle with a different colored wax. He then told me he expected a possible buyer to dinner and two other friends. When we had taken our seats at the table he very solemnly told the maid to go down and bring up a bottle of wine, one of those with the red seal. The maid could hardly suppress a grin, but I alone saw it. Then, after the meat, he told her to fetch a bottle with the blue seal, and with dessert the one with the yellow seal was brought, and all were drunk in perfect innocence and delight. He sold his picture, and he said he was sure the sealing wax had done it."

A SCRAP OF PAPER.

Charred and Discarded, It Brought Wealth to a Poor Widow.

Some years ago a poor widow kept a small shop in a Berlin suburb. One evening as she was serving a customer a workman stepped into the shop and asked permission to light his pipe. Drawing a piece of paper from his pocket, he twisted it up and, after lighting his pipe, threw down the spill and walked off with a word of thanks.

When sweeping the floor the following morning the widow took up the charred paper out of idle curiosity and, unfolding it, saw that it was a lottery ticket, only a portion of which had been burned. She folded it up, put it away in her pocket and had almost forgotten it, when the result of a large lottery drawing caught her eye in the paper.

She then remembered the crumbled ticket in her pocket, and on producing it found, to her amazement and delight, that it had won a prize of $50,000. She claimed the prize, and, although she advertised widely for its original owner, with the intention of sharing it with him, she was left in undisturbed possession of her fortune.—Exchange.

MAGISTRATE'S ECZEMA CURED
AFTER 20 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

Zam-Buk's Healing Power Proved by School Commissioner and Baptist Deacon.

ONE of the most recent converts to the Zam-Buk method of treating and curing disease is Mr. C. E. Sanford, of Weston, King's Co., N.S.

Mr. Sanford is a Justice of the Peace for the County, and a member of the Board of School Commissioners. He is also Deacon of the Baptist Church in Berwick. Indeed, throughout the County it would be difficult to find a man more widely known and more highly respected. Some time back he had occasion to test Zam-Buk, and here is his opinion of this great balm. He says:—

"I never used anything that gave me such satisfaction as Zam-Buk. I had a patch of eczema on my ankle, which had been there for over twenty years. Sometimes, also, the disease would break out on my shoulders. I had taken solution of arsenic, had applied various ointments, and tried all sorts of things to obtain a cure, but all in vain. I was advised to give Zam-Buk a trial, and as I am a firm believer in Nature's remedies, I did so. From first applying it I saw it was altogether different to the ordinary ointments and embrocations, and it soon began to show signs of clearing away the eczema on my ankle. This was so gratifying, that I persevered for some time with it, and I am glad to say it had the desired result. I am now cured of the disease which defied every other treatment for twenty years.

"This is not the only direction in which I have proved the merits of Zam-Buk. I suffered for a long time from piles, and I found a perfect cure for this painful ailment in Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk soothes the pain, relieves the congested veins, and so restores the elasticity to the tissues that the piles gradually but surely disappear."

Zam-Buk is a positive and certain cure for cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, piles, fevers, sores, ulcers, scalds, blood-poisoning, eczema, scabs, chapped hands, cold cracks, chilblains, ringworm, scalp sores, bad leg, diseased ankles, and all other skin diseases and injuries. Rubbed well into the parts affected, it cures neuralgia, rheumatism, and sciatica. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, three for $1.25, and post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse the harmful imitations sometimes represented to be "just as good."

ANCIENT SURVEYORS.

Their Methods Depicted on the Old
Tombs of Egypt.

In an address delivered before the Royal Geographical society Captain H. G. Lyons, director general of the survey department of Egypt, told of the work of ancient Egyptian surveyors. "At every period of ancient Egyptian history," he said, "the land was measured and recorded with considerable accuracy. Property was dealt in regularly, and an elaborate system of registration was maintained. No map of landed property in ancient Egypt has come down to us, but on the tomb walls we meet with representations of land measurers at work. Their methods of land measurement are represented on the walls of the tomb of one Menna at Sheikh Abd el Qurna, in Thebes, a land overseer and inspector of the boundary stones of Amon.

"In the scene depicted are shown two chainmen measuring a field of corn with a long cord, on which are knots or marks at intervals which seem to be about four or five cubits in length. Each also carries a spare cord coiled upon his arm. Beside them walk three officials, who carry writing materials and who are accompanied by a small boy carrying writing materials and a bag in which are probably documents and plans referring to the property. An old man and two boys also accompany the surveyors, and a peasant brings a loaf of bread and a bunch of green corn.

"A similar scene is pictured on the walls of a tomb belonging to a certain Amenhotep, also at Sheikh Abd el Qurna. Here only one man accompanies the chainmen, each of whom, as usual, carries a spare cord. The figures are larger than in the tomb of Menna, and, though they are now much damaged, it is possible to see clearly that the cord terminated in a ram's head."

A MAN OF ACTION.

He Got Out of His Tight Corner With Flying Colors.

He was a husband who, when he left home for a week or so on a business trip, invariably took with him a photo of his wife, and in the letters that he wrote to her he always made a great point of this portrait and dwelt upon the fact that the sight of it was the only thing that kept his spirits up when he was far away from her.

One day, however, he left the home and forgot to take the portrait with him. But he was not going to let a little thing like that worry him.

Down he sat and penned his customary amorous epistle, in which the portrait played its usual part. It was not until the letter was posted that he remembered that the portrait had been left at home in a conspicuous place where his wife could not fail to discover it.

The fat was indeed in the fire, but he was a man of action and determined to get out of his tight corner somehow. He remembered the shop where the photo had been taken and promptly wired there for another copy, which he had put into a beautiful frame especially adapted for traveling.

On his return home his wife "handed out the freezing mixture" to begin with and then dissolved in unapproachable tears. When under cross examination she admitted that the cause of her grief was his cruel deception, he produced the newly acquired photo and then asked her, in a hurt voice how she could possibly have suspected him of working off mere tarradiddle on his little wife.

"THE NIGGER IN THE WOOD-PILE"

Thousands of people go through life feeling more or less miserable without ever knowing the reason. They suffer from headaches, indigestion, pains in the back, and at the slightest chill get rheumatism or neuralgia.

They try to cure these separate outbreaks, never suspecting that the root of the whole trouble is the failure of the bowels to move regularly, and in many cases the sluggish action of kidneys and skin. The result, of course, is that the whole system gets clogged with impurities, which soon turn to poison, and show their presence in various ways.

"Fruit-a-tives"—or fruit juice tablets—promptly stir up the sluggish liver, regulate the bowels, and stimulate the kidneys and skin to do their work properly. Thus they cure all these troubles by removing the cause, and make it possible to really enjoy life. 50c a box—6 boxes for $2.50. Trial size 25c. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

We were making passage from Norfolk, Va., to Lisbon, Portugal, in the United States steamship Alliance. It was shortly after 4 o'clock. I had just gone to my room for a pipeful of tobacco when the sailmaker came to my door with a scared face. "Got any water in your room, Mr. Du Bois?" he said.

"Yes; here's a pailful."

"For God's sake give it to me quick! The sail room's afire, but don't say anything! I'll have it out in a minute!"

I handed him the pail of water, but was not going to take any chances of a fire on a man-of-war with fifteen tons of powder not six feet away, so I ran to the ship's bell and rang the fire alarm as furiously as I could. In less time than it takes you to read this hand grenades were being thrown and water was pouring into the now stifling mass of burning canvas. Men jumped in among the great bundles of furling sails and passed them out, and when one could not endure the smoke any longer another took his place. At last the danger was over, and I began to look around and take stock of the affair.

I had often wondered what I would do in case of a fire on the ship. I would save my watch. A watch is never used at sea, so it hung from a hook over my desk. I would be sure to take along my best girl's picture, and there were a few other little belongings which must not be parted with. Well, when the thing was over, what had I gathered together? Not my watch, not my best girl's picture, not anything that I had thought I would, but I had filled my pockets with extract of beef and nothing else. Dumb instinct, not a thought of anything but of something good to eat in dire extremity.

How did the fire start? The sailmaker, whose duty it is to keep the sails in good order, is privileged to go

SEED OF THE VIOLET.

The Flower Is Aggressive In Spite of Its Boasted Modesty.

The common wild violet affords one of the most remarkable illustrations of the care and apparent forethought of nature in preserving a species. As everybody knows, the violet grows in the shade, in pastures, woods and fields where the grass is abundant and long. It comes up early in the spring and flowers at a time when the grass is most abundant and succulent. Of course it is liable to be cut down by the scythe, but much more likely is it to be bitten off by grazing animals.

The violets that come in the spring either do not seed at all or very sparingly, so that if the plant relied on its spring flowers for seed it would probably perish off the earth in a very few years.

But in the late fall the plant bears another crop of blossoms that are never seen save by the professional botanist. They are very small, utterly insignificant in appearance, and grow either just at or below the surface of the ground. These are the flowers which produce the seeds for the next season. The flowers on long stems blooming in spring are only for show; the hidden flowers are for use, and the number of seeds they bear may be judged from the ease with which a wild violet bed spreads.

When the seeds are ripe the pod explodes, scattering them to a considerable distance, often to ten or twelve feet from the parent plant, so that in spite of its boasted modesty the violet not only takes care of itself, but becomes a troublesome aggressor.

SWOONED AT THE BELL.

Odd Effect of One Cure Through the Subliminal Consciousness.

A very well known oculist tells of one case where healing through the subliminal consciousness was really a source of embarrassment to the physician who was responsible for it. Several years ago when the eye specialist—he knows about ears and throats, too—was studying in Vienna a young girl was brought to the hospital to be treated for some nervous disorder. Hypnotism—or suggestion, as one is asked to call it these days—was used, and she was brought under his influence by the ringing of a bell. After a few treatments she went to sleep, or into the unconscious and receptive state, as soon as she heard the bell. She was speedily cured and left the hospital. Next day she was brought unconscious, roused and sent away. The day after that she was brought in again. Indeed, for some time scarcely a day passed when she wasn't carried in limp and unconscious. She became a positive nuisance to the great neurologist that had hypnotized her, and he finally sent persons to watch her. It was found that on her way to work she passed a certain church and usually was at the door at the moment during the celebration of the mass when the bell rang. At its tinkle she calmly curled up and went to sleep. It was necessary to suggest to her the next time she was brought to the hospital that no bell in the world could have any effect on her except the one rung in the hospital by the neurologist. After that she went about the city quite unaffected by the bells, and the neurologist drew a breath of relief.

AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed. I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood purifiers, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicine the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itching of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, as you can use this testimonial as you wish.

with and then dissolved in unapproachable tears. When under cross examination she admitted that the cause of her grief was his cruel deception, he produced the newly acquired photo and then asked her, in a hurt voice how she could possibly have suspected him of working off mere turpitude on his little wife.

The Eternal Feminine.

A photographer was called upon not long ago to make some pictures of an old lady of seventy years or so, but of surprising ability and quickness of perception. The picture man was therefore somewhat surprised to find that no words of address could induce the old lady to speak until after the operation was completed. Then she put her fingers into her mouth, whence she withdrew several wads of paper.

"You wouldn't have me photograph ed with my cheeks falling in, would you?" she asked the photographer. "I just stuffed some paper in my mouth to fill out."

Suspicious.

The person who, on examining a homemade heathouse, remarked that "it looked as if some fellow had built it himself" has a kindred spirit in a delightfully simple old lady, noted for her naive comments. In a street car not long ago she noticed a man carrying a shotgun and a blanket roll.

"Look at him," she whispered to her companion. "He looks as if he were going to spend the night somewhere."

Girlhood Vigor Regained.

The difficulty with most women lies in the fact that while they are anxious about the health and welfare of their family and loved ones, they rarely ever pay attention to themselves until Nature says Stop. To prevent this every woman should take Psychine regularly. It creates an appetite and is the greatest of digestants. Psychine is a boon to run-down, tired and overworked women, for there is LIFE IN EVERY DOSE. Mrs. J. T. Miller of 63 Notre Dame St., Winnipeg, proved this, for she says: "I am thankful for what Psychine has done for me. I was laid up with weakness. Oh, how I suffered. My appetite was very poor and my stomach was greatly disordered. Today I am strong and well, for Psychine has brought me permanent relief. I feel like a new woman now to what I did before taking Psychine. I feel the vigor of girlhood in my veins once more."

TRY PSYCHINE FREE.

We want every family to know the merits of Psychine and will send every householder a trial bottle free. Cut out coupon and mail to D. T. A. Slocum, Ltd., Toronto.

Please let me have a free sample of Psychine as per your special offer.

PHYSICIAN TELLS HOW HE TREATS RHEUMATIC
PATIENTS

A Distinguished Specialist Gives Valuable Advice.

In the first place I always impress upon my patients the importance of careful living and regular habits. Moderation in eating, keeping the feet dry, and wearing plenty of warm clothing are some of the precautions. No amount of medicine will cure, or even help, unless attention is paid to these few simple rules.

I have had perfect results where patients followed these instructions, assisted by the following blood tonic and rheumatic specific:—

- Fluid Extract Cascara..... ½ oz.
- Carrianna Compound..... 1 oz.
- Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla 6 oz.

Dose: One teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

It is advisable to drink plenty of water during the treatment.

A prominent local merchant who has tried this treatment states that it relieves backache, bladder trouble, and urinary troubles almost immediately and has a gentle but thorough action on the kidneys.

We advise all our readers to keep this prescription. The instructions are valuable.

Just a Way They Have.
Inhabitants of the Isle of Wight speak of "going to England" when they leave their own fragment of the kingdom. A patriotic Cornishman also "goes to England" when he crosses the Tamar. Similarly inhabitants of the Balkan peninsula talk of "going to Europe" when they leave their own corner of the continent. In curious contrast with the people of Great Britain, who regard themselves as both of and in "Europe," and it is only "the continent" that they visit. There is an old story of a Scottish minister who prayed for a blessing upon "the inhabitants of Great and Little Cumbrae (islands in the Firth of Clyde) and the adjacent islands of Great Britain and Ireland." Massachusetts people speak of going "down east" when they start for the Maine coast.

Parcel Wrappers.

"The hardest thing to wrap up," said a shipping clerk, "is a violin. A department store will often test a new wrapper by giving him a violin to do up. If he passes that test he is all right."

"Abroad bags and string, being expensive, are rarely used, and the young grocerman must be able to wrap potatoes, flour and all sorts of things in sheets of paper alone. He gets a kind of knack. He lays his flour or beans in a square of paper, doubles the paper over and, with an end in each hand, swings the parcel round and round. Like magic, then, it is done up, and you can carry it safely quite a hundred yards or so, provided you are careful."

Overstocked.

Hubby was evidently worried, and wifey was trying to cheer him up. "Cheer up, John, and don't worry," she said. "It doesn't do any good to

PE-RU-NA CHEERFULLY RECOMMENDED FOR COLDS AND CATARRH.

A Prominent Canadian Gives His Experience With the World-Famous Remedy For Catarrh.

Chronic Catarrh Always Begins With An Ordinary Cold.

So Says Dr. Hartman, the Greatest Living Authority On Catarrhal Diseases.

C. H. Parker, Ex-Warden of Compton Co., Quebec, has been mayor of Scottstown for a number of years. He is an influential resident in Scottstown and widely known.

He writes concerning Peruna. Read his letter below:

C. H. PARKER.

"I had several attacks of colds from time to time and finally a severe attack developed into catarrh.

"I was advised to use your celebrated catarrh remedy, and after taking three bottles I find myself completely cured, and I no longer suffer from catarrh or colds.

"I can cheerfully recommend Peruna for colds and catarrh."

If Peruna had no other medicinal value than the promptness with which it relieves common colds, it would be well worth while for any family to keep it in the house constantly.

AN ARAB SURGEON.

His Own Story of a Wonderful Operation He Performed.

Mr. Walter B. Harris in his account of a journey to Tafflet tells the story of a wonderful operation in surgery as it was reported to him by a native doctor who was traveling in his company:

"I think the old man fancied that I doubted his skill. At least, he was always holding forth upon the subject and continually repeating the story that when in Algeria he had been offered a fabulous salary—the sum varied each time the tale was told—to remain in charge of the military hospital at Algiers, an honor which he had declined.

Influence of Food.

"What do you think of the theory that food has a potent influence in determining character?" asked Mr. Smithfield as he put three lumps of sugar in his coffee.

"I guess it's all right," replied Mr. Wood as he severed a portion of his beefsteak. "It always seems a little cannibalistic to me when you order lobster."

"Well," retorted Mr. Smithfield good humoredly, "I ought to have known it was dangerous to lend you money after I discovered your fondness for beefs. But, seriously, if there were anything in the theory, wouldn't it make a man sheepish to eat mutton?"

AGED LIONS.

The Big Brutes Get Lazy and Spiritless as They Grow Old.

As he grows old a lion gets lazy and spiritless, says Everybody's. The haughty beast that stares at the crowd outside his cage usually is as fierce of spirit as a fat night watchman who blinks out upon the dark world through the circle of light cast by the lamp at his feet.

With plenty to eat, nothing to annoy him and a keeper to look after his cage, the king of beasts becomes as peaceful, portly and self satisfied as some of our latter day human monarchs, whose ministers of army, navy, state and other things take proper care of the regal edge and see to it that the usual three square meals per day await the royal gullet at the proper hours.

The story book impression that lions are always on the hunt in their native jungle is quite at variance with the truth. Indeed, the older lions will frequently go hungry or seek the leanings of another beast's kill rather than summon the energy to hunt prey for themselves.

In a group of ten or twelve trained lions two or three young, nervous animals usually supply the act with all its dash and spirit. The others are somnambulists.

Tigers, too, frequently grow lethargic with advancing years, but never to such a degree as the aging lion. There is always a pinch of ginger in the big striped cat. For that reason he makes a more spectacular performer than the lion and usually a tougher proposition for the trainer.

THE PARANOIAC.

Queer Delusions That Come With This Curious Mental Disease.

"That curious form of mental disease known as paranoia is seldom or ever cured," said a noted Chicago alienist.

"A paranoiac may be able to transact business with a fair degree of efficiency, but, as a rule, few of this class can be made to stick to work, as the nature of the malady prevents concentration of mind. One so possessed is afflicted with strange delusions, especially with the notion that he is being persecuted. Many an individual who is denominated a crank has paranoia. In general these unfortunates are misanthropic, have no social intercourse with their fellows and are brooding and introspective. Very often their mania leads them to the notion that they have been born to lead mankind in a religious way, and they proclaim themselves prophets of God. Quite often, too, they are discoverers of some wonderful invention that will astonish the world.

"It was a paranoiac who followed the great actress Mary Anderson from place to place, declaring himself her favored suitor and threatening to kill any man who sought her company. These threats were what led to the locking up of the demented creature, and I believe he finally met his fate in an asylum attended by one of the frequent attendants. Paranoiacs very often develop homicidal tendencies, and it is prudent to watch them at all times."

NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for women's ills.

Mrs. J. M. Tweedale, 12 Napanee Street, Toronto, Canada, writes to Lydia E. Pinkham:

"I was a great sufferer from female troubles, had those dreadful bearing down pains, and during my monthly periods I suffered so I had to go to bed. I doctored for a long time but the doctor's treatment failed to help me. My husband saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and got a bottle for me. I commenced its use and soon felt better. I kept on taking it until I was well and an entirely different woman. I also found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made childbirth much easier for me. I would recommend your Vegetable Compound to every woman who is afflicted with female troubles."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Tweedale, it will do for other suffering women.

ferred a fabulous salary—the sum varied each time the tale was told—to remain in charge of the military hospital at Algiers, an honor which he had declined.

"He never tired of narrating the facts and details of his most successful operation. There is a sect in Morocco called Hamacha, who are followers of a certain saint buried near Mekinez. These devotees amuse their audience—and themselves, too, let us hope—by throwing into the air heavy cannon balls, which they allow to fall upon their shaven crowns. On the occasion in question a Hamdushi had unfortunately been wanting in religious power, for the cannon ball crushed his skull.

"My old shereef friend had been called to the rescue. According to his account, he removed the broken patch of skull, replacing it with the rind of a green pumpkin, and closed the skin over it. In a month's time, he said, the patient was not only convalescent, but was once more hard at work practicing his religio-acrobatic feats, with not only a remodeled and renovated skull, but even a new crop of hair."

THE SILVER FOX.

He Is a Glorified Freak of the Red Fox Breed.

Only those wise in the woodlore of the north can fully know the magic in the name silver fox. The silver fox is not of different kind, but a glorified freak of the red race. His parents may have been the commonest kind of red foxes, yet nature in extravagant mood may have showered all her gifts on this favored one of the offspring and not only clad him in a marvelous coat, but gifted him with speed and wind and brains above his kind to guard his perilous wealth. And need he has of all such power, for this exquisite robe is so mellow rich, so wonderful in style, with its gloss black and delicate frosting, that it is the most desirable, the most precious of all furs, worth many times its weight in gold, the noblest pelt known to man. It is the proper robe of kings, the appanage of great imperial thrones today, as was the tyrian purple in the days of Rome. This is indeed the hunter's highest prize, but so guarded by the cunning brain and the wind and limb of the beast himself that it is through rare good luck more than hunter skill that a few of these fur jewels are taken each year in the woods.

All In the Mind.

On the opening day of one winter session the late Professor Tait of Edinburgh university entered the natural philosophy class room in the midst of the uproarious applause common to those occasions.

Presently he looked up at the tumultuous benches above him with the smile of one who had known the ways of students for a lifetime. At last, when a momentary hush came, he remarked, his gray eyes twinkling:

"Gentlemen, I must remind you that there is really no such thing as noise. It is merely a matter of subjective impression."

No Flies on Him.

Two Irishmen, just landed, stopped at a private boarding house on one hot July night. Retiring early, they left the window open and the light burning brightly. The mosquitoes swarmed into the room and began biting.

Mike, awakening, called to Pat to put out the light. Pat got up and put it out and crawled back to bed again.

Pat awoke about an hour later and found the room full of fireflies and said: "It's no use, Mike. They are coming in with lanterns!"

Pleasure Trips.

"Going to the north pole is no pleasure trip," said the sympathetic friend.

"Well," answered the arctic explorer, "it reminds me somewhat of the average pleasure trip. Everybody is so anxious to start and so glad to get home."

They never taste who always drink. They always talk who never think. Prior.

TONIC TREATMENT FOR INDIGESTION

The Only Sensible Way to Cure
Stomach Troubles and Give New Health.

When the stomach is feeble the food lies in it undigested, decays and throws off poisonous gases that distend the walls of the stomach, and causes serious interference with other organs, especially with the action of the heart and lungs. These poisonous gases have other ill effects. They are absorbed by the blood and so weaken and corrupt it as to cause aches in remote parts of the body and the formation of unhealthy tissue everywhere. General bodily weakness and loss of weight is the result. The nerves and the brain are disturbed, and discomforts such as dizziness, hot flashes, sleeplessness, irritability and despondency originate from this source. Experience shows that these troubles vanish just as soon as the stomach is made strong enough to digest the food. In other words it needs a tonic that will rouse it to do the work of changing the food into nourishment. The tonic ought to be one that will agree with the most delicate stomach, and this is exactly what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do. Here is a bit of strong proof:

Miss Lizzie Macdonald, Harbor-au-Bouche, N. S., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me what no other medicine did or apparently could do. For almost three years I suffered untold agony from indigestion. I would have the most distressing pains in the stomach after eating. I could not sleep at night and I would rise in the morning feeling tired and worn out. I lost in weight and was almost reduced to a shadow. I was under doctor's treatment almost constantly, but with no benefit. One day I read the testimonial of a lady who had been cured of dyspepsia by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. The first two or three boxes I took did not show any apparent relief and I began to fear the medicine would not help me, but as I had bought a half dozen boxes I decided that I would use them up anyway. To my joy, before they were all used I began to improve and I got three boxes more. By the time I finished these I was again in the best of health, and had gained 12 pounds in weight. I have not since had a twinge of this terrible trouble, and am more grateful than words can say for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FACTS ABOUT THE BRAIN.

Hard Thinking is Done at the Back of the Head.

Common opinion has it that the thinking is done in the front part of the brain, so that a high forehead means a lofty intellect. Common opinion, it turns out, is precisely wrong, remarks a scientific man. More hard thinking is done at the back of the head than anywhere else.

Time Heals Most Wounds

A Tale of Love and Disappointment

CHAPTER XIV.—(Cont'd).

The Joels went to Leighton Manor, and both Rebekah and Harecastle were glad of the respite, for the latter stayed in town. He was beginning to feel that Rebekah was not satisfied that all was right. At times he almost wished that she would break off the engagement. He had vainly endeavored to forget Ethel Fetherston. He felt thankful that Fate had not thrown them together since their last interview.

A few days quiet in the country enabled Rebekah to come to a decision. She determined to set her mind at rest, for once and for all. She wrote to Harecastle to meet her at their house in Park Lane and went there with a foreboding of evil. She found there many packages containing wedding presents, to be opened. One was from Ethel Fetherston, and her memory went back to the rumor which she had heard of the engagement between her and Harecastle. The uncertainty was making her utterly miserable, and she longed to be able to satisfy herself that her suspicions were unfounded.

Harecastle was astonished at the change that a few days had made in Rebekah's appearance. He missed the frank, open look, the welcoming smile, and he wondered what had caused the alteration.

"Cyril," she began quickly. "I want to ask you a question. Do not answer without thought, dearest. I implore you to be frank with me."

"I always try to be, Rebekah."

"I know that. I have been very miserable lately. Sometimes I fear that you do not really love me," she said sadly.

"Should he accept his liberty? The thought leapt at him, for here was a chance. He had but to say that he did not love her, and he would be free. The temptation was acute, and for a moment he wavered. But then he remembered all that depended on this marriage. Joel would never believe but that he himself had caused the rupture. He must lie, and lie firmly.

"Do you love me, Cyril?" she asked pleadingly. "Don't hesitate to give me pain. Speak the truth. It will be kinder. I could bear it now, but to discover later—"

She broke off and looked at him appealingly.

"I love you," he said in a hoarse voice, but his eyes did not meet hers, and she sighed deeply.

He went on to speak of the arrangements for the marriage, and he affected an interest that deceived her into believing, for the moment, that he spoke the truth. But then it was her desire to do so, and it is easy to persuade oneself that a state of affairs exists, when it coincides with one's passionate wish.

With an effort Harecastle redoubled his attentions, and in the end succeeded in smothering her suspicions.

He took her in his car, and as was fairly cautious, and if he had continued to be so all would have been well. It might have been thought that he would have learnt a lesson from his former experience, but such natures are not easily taught even by such a hard task master.

Copper mining shares were then the rage, and he decided to buy largely. Their value at once increased, and in consequence he gratified a desire for an expensive touring car. For a while everything succeeded, and in his dreams he saw himself rivalling Joel Josephs in wealth. But that imp of ill luck that had pursued him all his life determined to have a say in the matter. Down came the shares like a rocket. Paper that had represented forty thousand pounds was soon worth but twenty, then fifteen and finally ten thousand pounds. But this was not all for there was a liability attached which would more than swamp all the money that he possessed.

He was confident that all would come right if he only had sufficient capital to tide over this bad time. Writs were issued and judgments for large amounts were signed against him. Then came threats of bankruptcy, and he began to realize that he was in a tight corner.

Five thousand pounds would tide him over his present difficulties, and he felt that in a few months he would once more be in affluence. But where to get this money!

His thoughts naturally turned to the Earl, and he determined to go and see him. He found him at Wolverholme Castle, but when he presented himself he was informed that the Earl was unable to see him. In vain he sent a pressing note demanding an interview. The reply was a curt refusal. He wrote a long threatening letter, but this was returned to him, enclosed in another envelope.

"He evidently does not know that I got back the letters. Shall I tell him?" Ackroyd ruminated. "But perhaps he is acting under Joel's advice. I think I had better deal with the Jew."

This course was not at all to his liking, for he held Joel in profound respect. If he could have seen any other alternative he would have avoided the interview. He had the utmost fear of getting himself into his clutches, and he was sufficient of a lawyer to know that he would be rendering himself liable to a long term of imprisonment if they should dare to have him arrested.

That was the crux of the matter. Would they dare? Joel was just about to ally himself with the Earl's family, and he would naturally be desirous that nothing should be made public that would reflect upon his daughter.

Yes, he would take the risk and beard Joel.

As soon as he had come to this decision he drove in his car to his chambers in St. James'. By the use of the telephone he ascertained that Joel was at present staying at here to tell me that."

"Not entirely, Mr. Josephs. In fact I am here to throw myself on your mercy."

"That means more money. I understand you've been making a fool of yourself by investing largely in copper mines. You should have asked my advice. I should have told you to leave them alone."

"I am in a tight corner," Ackroyd said quickly.

"You must remain there then, that is if you are relying upon my help to get out of it. We have had our little business transaction together. That is terminated, and I take no further interest in you, Mr. Ackroyd."

"But you took an advantage of me. If I had known that Lord Wolverholme's treachery interested you so personally, you would have had to pay a much larger sum before I should have handed the evidence over to you. I asked you to give me the balance."

"Mr. Ackroyd," Joel said coldly, "your impertinence approaches the sublime. I have every mind to telephone to the police station and give you in charge for blackmail. Your punishment would not be a light one."

Common opinion has it that the thinking is done in the front part of the brain, so that a high forehead means a lofty intellect. Common opinion, it turns out, is precisely wrong, remarks a scientific man. More hard thinking is done at the back of the head than anywhere else.

Much of the rest is done in a region just above the ears. When the thinking involves action the sides and top of the head play their special part. In fact, about the only portion of the outer layers of the brain substance that have never been found to have the least connection with any sort of thinking is that lying above the eyes.

There is another curious fact about the thinking apparatus. Nine men out of ten at least do all their thinking on the left side of the brain, and might, so far as their purely mental operations are concerned, get on just as well if the entire right half were removed.

There have been men who have lost a couple of brains out of the right side of their heads and retained all their mental faculties unimpaired. There have been other men in whom the loss of a half thimbleful from the left side has rendered them for the remainder of their lives unable to recognize by sight their own wives.

The phrenologists, of course, have the entire brain mapped out like building sites—combateness here, order there. This part of one's brain operates when he puts away his shoes in the closet, and when he throws them at the cat.

Now, as a matter of fact, we have "faculties," in the mind and "organs" in the brain about as much as we have a football-playing muscle and a wood-sawing muscle, and still another muscle for standing still. The brain acts as a whole, just as the body does. We use all our muscles to play football, and we use them all to saw wood.

LITTLE LIVES LOST HOW TO SAVE THEM.

The annual report of the Registrar-General for Ontario shows that for every thousand children born one hundred and eleven die before they reach the age of one year. Most of these deaths are due to disorders of the stomach and bowels, and most of these little lives could be saved if mothers kept always at hand a safe and simple remedy like Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets cure all stomach and bowel troubles, but better still an occasional dose will prevent these troubles coming on. Mrs. N. Shaffer, The Brook, Ont., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach and bowel troubles and always find them satisfactory. I feel that my little ones are safe so long as I have this medicine in the house." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

then it was her desire to do so, and it is easy to persuade oneself that a state of affairs exists, when it coincides with one's passionate wish.

With an effort Harecastle redoubled his attentions, and in the end succeeded in smothering her suspicions.

He took her in his car, and as they were making their way along Bond Street, they were pulled up by the traffic. A lady, in a victoria, passed them, just as they commenced to move again. She looked at Harecastle and bowed. His face flushed, and he turned away, but not before Rebekah had observed his confusion.

"Who was that?" she asked quietly.

"Miss Fetherston," he replied. She made no comment, but this accidental encounter once more aroused her suspicions.

During the afternoon she chanced to call upon Miss Stanton, the friend who had told her of Harecastle's engagement to Miss Fetherston.

She had been there a few minutes when she saw the object of her thoughts enter the room.

"Please make me known to Miss Fetherston," she said to her hostess, and the introduction was effected.

"We passed you in Bond Street this morning," Rebekah remarked. "I was with Lord Harecastle."

"Yes, I saw you," Ethel replied quietly.

"You are an old friend of Cyril's, are you not?" she asked wistfully.

"Yes, we have known one another for years," Ethel answered rather coldly.

"I wish so much that his friends should be my friends," Rebekah said pleadingly. "You know that I do not really belong to your world."

Ethel looked at her curiously, and was agreeably surprised at the refined beauty of the daughter of the Jewish millionaire. She felt nothing but contempt for the way she had been treated by Harecastle, but this girl was not to blame, for she could not have known of their engagement. She would have forgiven anything, save that he should go straight from having jilted her to bind himself to another.

"Will you come to see me at Leighton Manor? May I send the car for you?" Rebekah asked eagerly. "Any day this week will suit me. To-day is Tuesday. Shall we say Thursday?"

Ethel was possessed by a natural desire to know more of the woman that Cyril was about to marry, and she decided to accept the invitation, so she consented to go on the Thursday.

Rebekah returned at once to Leighton Manor. She did not quite know why she had asked Ethel Fetherston to visit her, but deep in her heart there was an intention of trying to ascertain if there was any truth in her suspicion that Harecastle cared for her.

CHAPTER XV.

When Ackroyd received Joel's second cheque he had fully determined to invest the proceeds and to retire into the country, where he could live on the interest in comfort. But he was inoculated with the fever of gambling and his good resolutions vanished. He changed nothing of his extravagant manner of living, and he revelled in luxuries. The City once more engaged his attention, and he launched forth into speculation. At the outset he was also desirous that nothing should be made public that would reflect upon his daughter.

Yes, he would take the risk and beard Joel.

As soon as he had come to this decision he drove in his car to his chambers in St. James'. By the use of the telephone he ascertained that Joel was at present staying at Leighton Manor, and he decided to go there to see him.

He went to his safe and took out a large envelope, which he opened, and from which he took some photographs.

They were copies of the cipher letters which he had had taken before he had handed the originals over to Joel.

And so Ackroyd still possessed irrefutable evidence of the Earl's treachery.

Soon after lunch Ackroyd started in his car for Leighton Manor. He was not possessed of the self-confidence that sustained him upon his first journey to blackmail the Earl, for in Joel he realized that he was dealing with a man of different calibre.

He had heard the news of Harecastle's engagement to Joel's daughter with great interest, for it explained what had hitherto puzzled him, namely the reason that had animated Joel in buying the cipher letters for so large a sum. Naturally he had no idea that the letters had been used as a lever to force Lord Harecastle to marry the Jew's daughter. He merely thought that the engagement was on the tapis and that Joel had thought it advisable to destroy evidence that might injure the family with which his daughter was about to ally herself.

During the journey Ackroyd carefully thought out his plan of campaign. He looked with interest as he approached the palace that housed the famous millionaire, but it was with trepidation that he asked the footman, who answered the door, to send in his name to his master.

He had not long to wait, and was ushered through the vast hall into a cosily furnished library. The room was a large one, and was evidently the one in which Joel worked. On the writing-table rested a telephone, and an open door led to another room, which Ackroyd imagined might belong to a secretary.

Joel was evidently in no hurry to see him, for a half an hour passed and still he did not come. Ackroyd's nervousness increased and he dreaded the interview more than ever. Were his need not so desperate, he would have turned tail and fled, but money he must have, and quickly. The luxury which he had employed for the last few weeks had become a necessity to him. The thought that he might have to return to his former poverty struck terror to his heart.

If this delay was intentional Joel was acting astutely, for each moment rendered Ackroyd less fit mentally for the battle which he knew he would have to wage. But at last a termination was put to his suspense, for Joel entered briskly.

"A surprise visit, Mr. Ackroyd. What can I do for you?" he asked curtly. "I am very busy and cannot spare you much time."

"First I must congratulate you upon your daughter's engagement to Lord Harecastle," Ackroyd began coolly. "It supplied a motive that was puzzling me."

"I am glad that your curiosity is satisfied," Joel said sarcastically. "But surely you haven't come down

NOT TO BE PUMPED.

The Paul Pry of a certain town, who loved to find out everything about the new residents, espied the son of a new neighbor one morning in the local druggists.

"Good-morning, little boy," he said. "What is your name?"

"Same as dad's," was the quick reply.

"Of course, I know, little boy; but what is your dad's name, dear?"

"Same as mine, sir."

Still he persisted.

"I mean, what do they say when they call you to breakfast?"

"They don't never call me; I al-lus gets there first."

And the average small boy dislikes to part his hair almost as much as a man dislikes to part with his.

They Advertise Themselves.—Immediately they were offered to the public, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills became popular because of the good report they made for themselves. That reputation has grown and they now rank among the first medicines for use in attacks of dyspepsia and biliousness, complaints of the liver and kidneys, rheumatism, fever and ague and the innumerable complications to which these ailments give rise.

All the world's a stage upon which most of us make a show of ourselves sooner or later.

All Women Know what it is to have violent pain. Some take one thing and some another. Our advice is to place "The D & L" Mouth Plaster over the seat of the pain: it will do more to give you comfort than anything.

Maude—"I'm a little uneasy in my mind. Ned asked me to marry him, and I told him I might, some day. Now, would you call that a promise?" Marie—"No, I should call it a threat."

Repeat it:—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

Jones—"Why did you leave your new lodgings? I thought the landlady promised to treat you like one of the family?" Smith—"Yes; that's why I left."

They Cleanse the System Thoroughly.—Parmelee's Vegetable Pills clear the stomach and bowels of bilious matter, cause the excretory vessels to throw off impurities from the blood into the bowels and expel the deleterious mass from the body. They do this without pain or inconvenience to the patient, who speedily realizes their good offices as soon as they begin to take effect. They have strong recommendations from all kinds of people.

If there is any knocking to be done let opportunity do it.

Repeat it:—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

You may have observed that the man who boasts that he can drink or let it alone usually drinks.

FORTUNES LOST BY LEAKS

LITTLE THINGS THAT CUT DOWN PROFITS.

Meter of a London Gas Company Registered for 18 Years One-Tenth of Gas Consumed.

A London gas company has recently announced that during the past twelve months it lost by leakage at least 11,000,000 cubic feet of gas. Gas mains are very carefully constructed, inspectors look after gas-meters, yet there are the figures in black and white. Enough gas to fill about forty big balloons vanished into thin air. Every gas company in existence suffers in the same way, and such losses must cut heavily into profits, says Pearson's Weekly.

Sometimes meters prove faithless. Some years ago the officials of the South Metropolitan Gas Company discovered that the meter in the Rotherhithe public baths had for eighteen years on end been registering but one-tenth of all the gas consumed. It was reckoned that the total amount out of which this particular meter had swindled the company was $14,638.73. The company sent the corporation a bill for this amount, but the latter successfully pleaded the Statute of Limitations, and only paid about a third of the claim.

Water is not so elusive as gas, yet the amount of water which disappears between source and consumer is simply amazing. Devonport has an open channel which carries water from the top of Dartmoor, twenty miles away. In summer, what between evaporation and leakage, not fifty per cent. of the supply reaches the city on the Hamoaze.

WASHING IN GOOD LARD OIL.

In factories friction is the great enemy of efficiency. In all large factories, the machines of which are driven from a central steam-engine, power must be transmitted from shop to shop by means of belts and shafting.

Recent sixteen different factories were chosen and Professor Benjamin's tests applied. The results were startling. In no factory was the loss less than fifty-five per cent. of the engine's efficiency; in a planing mill the loss was seventy-three per cent., and in a large iron-works where bridge material was prepared, eighty per cent., that is, four-fifths of the power, was absolutely wasted in transmission.

The waste of stores and supplies in large factories, though less than it used to be, is still very heavy. Such things as bolts and washers, oil, red lead, cotton waste, and even files, disappear at double the needful rate. Workmen have often been caught washing their hands in good lard oil; and the number of new files spoilt by putting them on rough castings is enormous.

Shop-keepers, as well as factory-owners, suffer very heavily through the carelessness or dishonesty of employees. The head of a well-known sport-outfitting firm, which employs about 900 assistants, recently complained in a police-court of the constant and heavy losses incurred by small peculations.

There is also much pilfering of goods as well as of cash. The manager of a large india-rubber works reckoned his losses from thefts of rubber at not less than $100 a week.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS EFFECT ANOTHER GRAND CURE IN NOVA SCOTIA.

Mrs. Margaret Brady Tells How They Relieved Her of Rheumatism and Made Her Stronger in Every Way.

Green's Brook, Pictou Co., N.S., Feb. 1st (Special).—That diseased Kidneys are the cause of the ills from which so many women suffer and that they are cured completely and permanently by Dodd's Kidney Pills, is once more proved in the case of Mrs. Margaret Brady of this place.

"For five years," says Mrs. Brady when interviewed regarding her sickness and cure, "I was ill with Kidney and Liver complaint, which caused Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Heart Flutterings. My nervous system was affected and my blood seemed to lack vitality."

"I tried medicines and was under the doctor's care, but received no benefit till I used Dodd's Kidney Pills and Diamond Dinner Pills. They relieved me of Rheumatism and made me stronger and better in every way. These remedies and no other cured me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure diseased Kidneys and all diseases that are caused by diseased Kidneys or impure blood.

GREAT MEN WHO HAVE PROVED ZAM-BUK.

Scientist, Analyst, and War Correspondent all Testify.

Men and women great in point of knowledge, position and experience, say that Zam-Buk stands superior to all other healing substances. Read the opinions of the following eminent men:—

Mr. Frank Scudamore, the famous war correspondent, who has gone through twenty-nine battles, and whose dispatches during the Boer War were so eagerly read from coast to coast in Canada, says:—"Owing to the poisonous dye from an undergarment penetrating a slight scratch, my legs broke out in ulcers. At one time I had seventeen deep holes in my left leg, into each of which I could put my thumb; and had fourteen similar ulcers on my right leg. Remedy after remedy failed to heal these, and I was well nigh worn out with pain and lack of sleep. Zam-Buk was introduced, and I am glad to say that it gave me speedy relief. A few weeks' treatment resulted in a perfect cure of all the ulcers."

WOMEN BUTCHERS.

An Unusual Feminine Occupation Followed in Paraguay.

The butchers in all parts of Paraguay, South America, are women. In the public slaughterhouses the cattle are despatched by men. This is the only part of the work done by men. The animal is skinned and otherwise prepared by women who are dexterous in the use of the saw and knife. It is served out to the customers by women—not generally by weight, but by the piece—and the price is very low.

Women of all ages act the part of butchers. Some are young and pretty, others old and wrinkled. The women are great bargainers and keen to pull a new arrival almost to pieces in the hope of securing his custom. These women butchers earn good wages, and many of those in business on their own account acquire a modest fortune.

The cause of this state of things is the heroic war waged by Paraguay more than thirty years ago against the overwhelming forces of Brazil, the Argentine Republic and Uruguay combined. This war, which lasted five years, bore many similar points of resemblance to the recent Boer war. It ended in the almost total annihilation of the able-bodied male population of the country.

When the war was over the people had been reduced to the most abject poverty and were on the verge of starvation. Worse still, owing to the destruction of the male population, perfect anarchy prevailed, and all the work formerly performed by males fell on the fair sex. They rebuilt the houses which had been burned down, tilled the fields and wove for themselves rough homespun clothing from the cotton grown in their own fields.

HANDICAPPED.

Two boys who managed to be rather unruly in school so exasperated their teacher that she requested them to remain after hours and write their names one thousand times.

They plunged into the task. Some fifteen minutes later one of them grew uneasy and began watching his companion in disgrace.

Suddenly the first one burst out with despair, and, between his sobs, said to the teacher:

"Tain't fair, mum! His name's Bush and mine's Schlutermyer."

Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup is the result of expert chemical experiments, undertaken to discover a preventive of inflammation of the lungs and consumption, by destroying the germs that develop these diseases, and fill the world with pitiable subjects hopelessly stricken. The use of this Syrup will prevent the dire consequences of neglected Colds. A trial, which costs only 25 cents, will convince you that this is correct.

Is Pe-ru-na Useful for Catarrh?

Should a list of the ingredients of Peru-na be submitted to any medical expert, of whatever school or nationality, he would be obliged to admit without reserve that each one of them was of undoubted value in chronic catarrhal diseases, and had stood the test of many years' experience in the treatment of such diseases. THERE CAN BE NO DISPUTE ABOUT THIS WHAT-EVER. Peru-na is composed of the most efficacious and universally used herbal remedies for catarrh. Every ingredient of Peru-na has a reputation of its own in the cure of some phase of catarrh.

Peru-na brings to the home the COMBINED KNOWLEDGE OF SEVERAL SCHOOLS OF MEDICINE in the treatment of catarrhal diseases; brings to the home the scientific skill and knowledge of the modern pharmacist; and last but not least, brings to the home the vast and varied experience of Dr. Hartman, in the use of catarrh remedies, and in the treatment of catarrhal diseases.

The fact is, chronic catarrh is a disease which is very prevalent. Many thousand people know they have chronic catarrh. They have visited doctors over and over again, and been told that their case is one of chronic catarrh. It may be of the nose, throat, lungs, stomach or some other internal organ. There is no doubt as to the nature of the disease. The only trouble is the remedy. This doctor has tried to cure them. That doctor has tried to prescribe for them.

BUT THEY ALL FAILED TO BRING ANY RELIEF.

Dr. Hartman's idea is that a catarrh remedy can be made on a large scale, as he is making it; that it can be made honestly, of the purest drugs and of the strictest uniformity. His idea is that this remedy can be supplied directly to the people, and no more be charged for it than is necessary for the handling of it.

No other household remedy so universally advertised carries upon the label the principal active constituents, showing that Peru-na invites the full inspection of the critics.

Copper is another raw material which is stolen in extraordinary quantities from electrical and other works. At some Lancashire electric works detectives had to be employed to put a stop to

THE THEFTS OF COPPER.

They discovered that the men were in the habit of carrying the metal away concealed in their presumably empty-dinner-cans.

Tradesmen who dealt in perishable goods such as milk, fruit, fresh meat, fish, and the like, invariably reckon a considerable percentage of loss from spoiling. Even so, a sudden heat wave in summer cuts into the butcher's profits to an extent incredible to an outsider.

Sometimes it is just the goods which are least expected to do so which go wrong. There was quite a sensation in the wine trade when the whole of a very celebrated vintage for 1895 was withdrawn from the market. It was only in a few bottles of this vintage that a white sediment was observed. But the great business house decided that, rather than run any risk, they would call in the whole of the vintage.

Manufacturing houses usually have to send samples when tendering for a contract. A single sample may be of no great intrinsic value, yet in the aggregate the cost of samples mounts up very heavily. To take an example. Some years ago Mr. Roosevelt required a new service of china for the White House, and samples were required for. Mr. Van Henson, upon whom the task of selecting samples fell, estimated that the total value of those submitted was $7,000. It is worth mentioning that the choice eventually fell on a Wedgwood service.

The Crick in the Back. — "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin," sings the poet. But what about the touch of rheumatism and lumbago, which is so common now? There is no poetry in that touch, for it renders life miserable. Yet how delighted is the sense of relief when an application of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil drives pain away. There is nothing equals it.

NOT IN THE MEDICAL BOOKS.

A visitor to an hotel was impressed with two boarders—one a pretty, delicate-looking young lady, and the other a plain-faced maid. Meeting the maid in the hall one morning, he said, sympathetically:

"Your young lady seems very ill."

"Yes, sir; she suffers sadly."

"Consumption, I should fear?"

"No, sir; I am sorry to say it is of the heart."

"Dear me! Aneurism?"

"Oh, no, sir; it is only a lieutenant in the Navy."

Mamma—"Now, Tommy, you will be a good boy." Tommy (earnestly)

"—Yes, mamma." "And you won't fight with the little boy next door?"

Tommy (still more earnestly)—"No, mamma, I won't. He walloped me last night, and he said he would give me another walloping if I gave him any more cheek, so you may depend on me being a good boy, mamma."

MANIAC KILLS AND MAIMS

Young Melancthon Township Man Murders Farmer and Son and Fatally Injures Wife.

Shelbourne, Ont., Feb. 7.—One of the most terrible tragedies that has ever been recorded in Dufferin county took place at the little hamlet of Shrigley, in Melancthon township, early this morning, when a young man named George Ernest Stewart, during a period of insane frenzy, murdered John Spanhouse, a neighbor, and his son, James, dangerously wounded Mrs. John Spanhouse and George Beaumont, and injured three other persons whom he chanced to encounter before the fit of insanity had passed. To-night, having confessed that he committed the murders, Stewart lies in the Shelbourne lock-up awaiting the law's action. He can give no reason for his terrible deed, but the circumstances attending it are such as to leave no doubt at all that Stewart for an hour this morning, was more dangerous than any tiger in the jungle.

WAS "QUEER" IN THE WEST.

He is a powerfully-built, young man twenty-nine years of age. Four years ago he went west and located on a ranch. There he took typhoid fever, and in addition had the misfortune to lose some money in speculation. The Mounted Police at Medicine Hat took charge of him when he began to show that he was not quite "right," and released him only on the promise that his friends would bring him home to Ontario and see that he was looked after. His father is Richard Stewart of Maple Valley. Young Stewart spent last night at the residence of his brother, William, who lives across the way from the Spanhouse homestead, on the fourth concession of Melancthon.

ATTACKED HIS BROTHER.

He had been restless and had passed two or three sleepless nights and his brother as a consequence felt anxious about him. George went to bed, but removed only his boots and socks. William slept on a lounge, without undressing, so that he might watch his brother. About 5 o'clock this morning George rose and crept to the door. His brother followed and tried to prevent him from leaving the house. Failing, he followed the now furious maniac into the yard and attempted to force him back into the house, but was choked and knocked down, though not dangerously injured. Leaving his brother in a semi-conscious condition, Stewart took a heavy stake from a woodrack in the yard and set out on his horrible quest. He had possessed himself also of a revolver, and was still without either cap or boots.

THE MURDERS AT SPANHOUSE'S.

He crossed the road to the Spanhouse place and knocked at the door. It was opened by Mr. John Spanhouse, who, from the condition of the body when it was found, came to the door hurriedly without putting on all his clothes. As soon as Stewart entered the fired at Spanhouse. There are several bullets in the old man's body. Mrs.

Stewart carried it by the barrel. Mr. Wilson was one of the luckiest of the victims, his injuries being painful, but not serious.

BEAUMONT'S CONDITION SERIOUS.

From here Stewart, his thirst for blood apparently unabated, made his way across the road to C. J. Pound's, who is absent in Cobalt. The hired man, George Beaumont, and the housekeeper, Mrs. Cowan, were attacked here, Beaumont being so badly clubbed that but slight hopes are entertained for his recovery. Mrs. Gowan's injuries were less severe, and after Stewart left the house she was able to telephone to W. D. Taylor of Maple Valley for assistance.

Mr. Taylor started to the rescue and met Stewart about half way between the valley and Mr. Pound's. He endeavored to placate the crazed man, who, however, first threatened to shoot him and then snapped the gun at him, but it was either not loaded or not in condition. At any rate, luckily for Mr. Taylor, it misfired. Stewart was then allowed to resume his journey unmolested to his father's home. Here he attempted no damage and went peacefully to bed. When Constables Thompson and Watham from Shelbourne went to arrest him this afternoon he was sleeping as soundly as though at perfect peace with himself and the world.

ATTACKED THE JAILER.

In Shelbourne jail to-night, however, his mania again broke forth, and, although heavily manacled, he attempted to brain his jailer.

YOUNG FOLKS

THE MARSHMALLOW TOAST.

Aileen was the one who thought about having a marshmallow toast. "Lucius, Lawrence, Elizabeth, Bob, Helen, and me, that makes six, and I want seven," said Aileen.

"Why not ask Annabel?" It was mamma who asked the question.

There was silence for a minute. "She's too little; she's only seven," objected Aileen.

"She isn't strong, and can't play the nicest games," said Elizabeth.

"I know," said Lawrence, "but she's jolly good at guessing."

"She can't run hard at all. She isn't a bit of fun," and Lucius turned a handspring on the rug.

"Don't have her, Aileen."

Mrs. Bronson looked at Lucius in some surprise. "I thought you were friends. Didn't she make a pretty book-mark for you?"

Lucius reddened. He was not an ungrateful little boy, only too quick to agree with whatever was said. "Yes, but she's only seven."

"She's just right, then. You said just now you wanted seven."

Mrs. Bronson was smiling. "I think we shall have Annabel. I want her."

Aileen's face fell. "She'll spoil the party."

"I don't think so; but you will spoil it if you are unkind to a little neighbor."

So it happened that Annabel was invited to the marshmallow toast.

"I'll write the notes to all of you and to Annabel," said Mrs. Bronson, "and we'll do something different this time."

"What, mamma? Do tell us what will it be?"

"Each child shall make up a game to play after the marshmallows are toasted," said her mamma.

"What fun!" said Elizabeth.

"That'll be great!" said Lawrence.

"I don't believe we ever could do it," said Lucius.

"We can try. It will be fun trying," said Aileen. "There's a whole week."

Such a week of delightful mystery it was. So many whispered confidences between big and little brothers, little girls and mothers and aunts, and not a word to be told to any of the other five! Everybody talked about the party except little Annabel.

When the day came, the children hurried home from school to get ready for the party; and at ten minutes of five the little girls and boys had arrived at Mrs. Bronson's door, each one greatly surprised to find the others so prompt.

After an hour's play the children went into the dining-room to a dainty spread. Later on, Mrs. Bronson placed a little lighted candle beside each plate, then gave each a tiny fork, and the toasting began. Each had a bowl to fill, and when they were done, they all had red cheeks and red fingers. They vied with each other to make the sweetmeats an even brown.

"I have toasted the biggest and brownest of the whole lot," said Lawrence, holding up a fat marshmallow on his fork. "Who can make a rime to a marshmallow toast?"

He crossed the road to the Spanhouse place and knocked at the door. It was opened by Mr. John Spanhouse, who, from the condition of the body when it was found, came to the door hurriedly without putting on all his clothes. As soon as Stewart entered he fired at Spanhouse. There are several bullets in the old man's body. Mrs. Spanhouse was awakened by hearing her husband cry out "an shot," and rushed to the front of the house. There she saw the murderer still firing at her husband's body. She sought refuge in her bedroom and Stewart followed. He shot and also clubbed her with the stake he had in his hand. She recovered consciousness later, but is not expected to live.

CRUSHED VICTIMS SKULL IN.

At the moment the son, James Spanhouse, appeared. He had heard the shots, and, with an old military rifle in his hands, and without staying to dress, came down the stairs. Stewart, who was awaiting, attacked him as he entered the parlor, seized the rifle, and, clubbing it, struck Spanhouse a terrific blow upon the head, crushing in his skull and breaking the rifle stock. The blood-spattered floor and walls when the victims were found bore dreadful witness to the force of the blow.

There remained but one other person in the house besides the murderer, the Spanhouse servant, Miss Grace Christian. Terrified by the sounds from the encounter, she remained, quiet until Stewart, carrying the rifle and still without cap or boots, left the house. Then she crept downstairs, saw that only Mrs. Spanhouse had life in her, and from the Ostrander farm house near by telephoned news of the tragedy to Shelburne.

HIS TRAIL TO MAPLE VALLEY.

Meanwhile Stewart started across the fields to his father's house, about three miles off. When near Maple Valley he knocked at the door of a house occupied by William Wilson. Entering, he attacked Mr. Wilson with the old military rifle he had helped himself to after killing James Spanhouse. The stock was partly broken off, and Fatal Accident to Employee of Toronto Paper Company.

A despatch from Cornwall says: The inhaling of sulphuric gas in the pulp department of the Toronto Paper Co.'s mills the other day resulted in the death on Wednesday night of J. Sibley, one of the employees. Sibley and another man, named J. Morin, remained in the room after the digesters were emptied, contrary to orders. When the cooled gas began to settle, they ran for windows. Morin got there all right, but Sibley inhaled some of the gas and was overcome. He was taken to the General Hospital, where he died. He was a native of England, 32 years of age, married, and leaves four children.

HALF RATES CUT 6FF.

Railways Decide That Clergymen Must Pay Full Fare.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Western railways on Friday, announced their definite determination to abolish the half-fare rate for all clergymen, students and missionaries, which privilege has been enjoyed by them since the settlement of the west. The matter has been under serious advisement for some time, and the companies at first thought of extending the cut rate to missionaries in the newer sections and sparsely-settled districts of the country, but later withdrew this also. Several of the churches made strong representations to the companies in the matter without avail.

MONEY FOR HUDSON'S BAY

More Than One-third of the Cost of the Railway Has Been Provided

A despatch from Ottawa says: The proceeds from the sale of pre-empted lands in the west under the act passed last session, allowing each homesteader to purchase at $3 per acre an additional 120 acres of Dominion lands, thus obtaining a farm of 320 acres, have now amounted to over six million dollars, the total number of acres taken up during the last quarter of 1905 being 2,009,139. When the bill was passed it was tacitly agreed by the Government that the first charge on this fund would be the cost of construction of the proposed Hudson's Bay Railway, for which the survey is now being made. While this understanding has not yet been formally incorporated in legislation, it is understood that when the report of the survey is received and the Government is in a position to draft the bill providing for the construction of the road, provision will be made for the application of the fund in the manner designated. The estimated cost of the whole road is fifteen millions. It will thus be seen that more than one-third of the cost of the whole undertaking has already been raised by the sale of lands under the western lands act.

Progress reports of the survey have been received from time to time by parties now in the field, but it is not expected any complete or authoritative report as to the most favorable route or the cost will be ready before the spring, and it is hardly probable the Government will be able to bring down a bill for the construction of the road until next session.

DRUNKENNESS ON INCREASE.

Statistics in London Show More Arrests in Year.

A despatch from London says: The police statistics for 1905, issued on Wednesday, show a large increase in arrests for drunkenness, the total being 1,158; 315 were before the court for disorderly conduct, which also shows an increase. The total number of arrests was 2,552.

each a tiny fork, and the toasting began. Each had a bowl to fill, and when they were done, they all had red cheeks and red fingers. They vied with each other to make the sweetmeats an even brown. "I have toasted the biggest and brownest of the whole lot," said Lawrence, holding up a fat mallow on his fork. "Who can make a rime to a marshmallow toast?" "O dear, I can't think of a thing but ghost," said Elizabeth. "There's most," said Lucius. "I can—I think," said Annabel, shyly.

"It's not well to boast Of marshmallows you toast, But hand them right off to your very kind host."

"Bravo, Annabel! You're right," and Aileen's papa reached from the doorway and plucked the mallow from Lawrence's fork.

When tea was over, the children went into the library and played the games they had made up. Elizabeth had made up a charade on Aileen's name. She had painted a big pasteboard eye, and had borrowed Mrs. Bronson's step-ladder to make the second act. Lawrence had made a set of cards with the names of towns and cities on them, and when each child drew one, he or she had to take a corner or place in the room and call it the name on the card. Lucius had a conundrum and Aileen had made a guessing-basket. Each child had one guess as to what was in it—something beginning with "N."

"Nuts," said Lawrence. "Nickels," guessed Lucius. "Nickels or nails."

Elizabeth said neckties. Aileen knew, and it was Annabel's turn. "A necklace," said the little girl. "Sure enough, it was a necklace, and Mrs. Bronson said it was a prize, and had to go to the child who had guessed right. So she put the blue beads round Annabel's neck, and kissed her. 'But where's your game, dear?'"

Annabel darted out of the room and came back with a brown-paper bundle in her arms. "It's not much," she said, "but I got the pictures out of old books in grandma's garret, and made some historical paper dolls. See, they are the kings and queens of England; and the thing is to set them up just as they really came—Henry the Eighth, then Mary, then Elizabeth. It's very interesting. I call it a history game. You have to think hard to make them right."

"A beautiful game, and a very useful one," said Mrs. Bronson; and as the children gathered about the colored dolls, in their fin robes and royal crowns, it was voted that Annabel had made the best game of all.

"I am so glad you like it," said the child, "and I made it for a present for Aileen. It was so nice of Aileen to ask me, for I'm just seven, you know, not a big girl like the others."

Aileen's face flushed. "I'm really and truly glad, too," she said, putting her arms round her small guest; and all the children said the next day that the smallest girl was the biggest success at the marshmallow toast.—Youth's Companion.

LOST IN A BLIZZARD.

James Semple's Brave Fight for Life was Unavailing.

A despatch from St. John, N.B., says: Half covered with snow and ice, the body of James Semple of Fredericton, who, with his team of four horses, made such a gallant struggle for life when lost on Lake Spednik, near Vanceboro', in last Saturday night's blizzard, was found on the lake on Thursday afternoon close to the spot where three of his horses were discovered dead on Tuesday. Search for the unfortunate man had been kept up, and the searchers had passed several times close to the spot where the body was eventually found. It lay half concealed by drifting snow, and from appearances Semple had made a brave fight to the last. There were signs that he had fallen into the water, and managed to scramble back on the ice only to succumb to the cold. It was supposed that he had been dead since Sunday. The body was found on the American side of the lake, and about five miles from Vanceboro'.

A despatch from North Bay says: Fire broke out at six o'clock on Wednesday night in the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway station at Temagami, and the handsome structure, completed about one year ago, at a cost of fifteen thousand dollars, is in ruins, only the massive stone walls standing. The operator had just time to briefly report that the building was on fire and make his escape. Wooden building adjoining, occupied as restaurant and baggage-room, was saved.

CANADA GETS GRAIN TRADE

Improvements in Harbors That Have Already Brought Good Results.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The annual report of the Department of Public Works, tabled in the Commons on Wednesday, shows that for the fiscal year 1907-08 the total expenditure was $11,199,384, an increase of $1,851,959 over the previous year. The items include the following:—Harbor and river works, $2,447,882; dredging and new dredging plants, $3,344,306; public buildings, $4,331,901; telegraph lines, $462,233.

A fact emphasized in the report is that Canada is profiting by the experience gained at the older harbors of Europe, and laying out in each case a comprehensive scheme of development. The result already is a vast increase in shipping from the great lakes to the sea. Boston and New York have lost to Montreal in the European grain trade, and St. John is in a position to successfully compete with Portland. Not only the more important ports have been attended to, but the department has not lost sight of the needs of the lesser harbors, where wharfs, breakwaters and shelters have been constructed, and dredging carried out. The construction of dams in the interest of navigation and for water conservation is strongly recommended in that part of the report dealing with water powers. The total mileage of telegraph lines under the department is 7,225, with 393 offices transmitting during the year 105,000 messages.

A WONDERFUL NEW STEEL

Has Cutting Power Four Times as Great as That of Any Other Known.

A despatch from London says: In an address to the Royal Institution the other day Prof. Arnold of Sheffield University said that within a year there would be on the market a British steel with quadruple the cutting power of any now known. What Prof. Arnold referred to was a product of the Continental Steel Works at Sheffield, just discovered and named "Nova Superior." B. W. Winder, the manager of the works, in an interview, on Wednesday, said that the discovery was the outcome of litigation instituted by the Bethlehem Steel Company, which claims the patent rights on air-hardened high speed steel. Experiments with a view to rendering themselves independent of the American claim were conducted by the Continental Works and resulted in the discovery. A tool made of the old high speed steel, working on hard material at Sheffield, had to be ground five times a day. Last week a similar tool of the new process steel was put on. It worked with one grinding for a day and a half and was still sharp. Mr. Winder says the new steel will in no way cause drastic alterations in machinery.

TELEPHONES OF THE WEST

The Surplus Revenue in Manitoba Is a Quarter of a Million Dollars

A despatch from Winnipeg says: After a year's operation the surplus of the Manitoba telephone system is approximately a quarter of a million dollars after deducting the cost of some 600 miles of long-distance lines and a number of rural systems, which have been constructed by the Government. In January, 1908, the Provincial Government purchased all the lines, plants, franchises, etc., from the Bell Telephone Company, which had a monopoly in Manitoba. At the time of the purchase officials of the Government promised a reduction in rates, but to date no reduction has been made, excepting in certain classes of long-distance tolls. With this fine financial showing the Province will also announce a reduction in all telephone rates and tolls within the boundaries of Manitoba, and the bill now being prepared for presentation to the Manitoba Parliament provides for various reductions ranging from 20 to 35 per cent. from the present rates.

The example set by Manitoba impelled the Alberta Government to follow suit, and the Government system in that Province will also show a big surplus for the first year.

How To Secure Farm Help.

As usual, the Salvation Army will be in a position to introduce farm help to farmers throughout the country during the coming spring. All indications point to a revival in trade, and there is a probability that farm help will be scarce. The Army authorities are constantly in communication with new comers and others in the country, who are desirous of locating on farms from time to time, and will be glad to introduce these people to farmers needing help. It is not the purpose of the Army, however, to encourage the immigration of farm help to Canada during the coming season, unless the conditions warrant such a policy. Therefore, farmers who are likely to require help, are advised to communicate promptly with Lieut.-Colonel Thomas Howell, James and Albert Streets, Toronto, Ontario. Application Forms and all other information will be supplied freely on application to the above address.

There passed away at his home in Switzerville, on January 10th, 1909, Mr. Richard B. Vanalstine, at the ripe age of 92 years. The deceased was born in Richmond, of U. E. ments for a special meeting to be held in the W. C. T. U. Hall on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock. All the ladies of the town are cordially invited. Remember the place W. C. T. U. Hall over Mr. Paisley's grocery.

EFFECTIVE RECIPE.

Here is a simple home-made mixture as given by an eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night; painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe. Try it:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

These ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire Kidney and Urinary structure, and often overcomes the worst forms of Rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and foul, decomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. Try it if you aren't well. Save the prescription.

There is no limit to the power of a consecrated motherhood, of a young womanhood. Even though deprived of the political weapons which would be potent to enforce her requests or give her the coin of vantage she needs in works of reform, she still weilds an influence powerful to accomplish, and in a measure effectual, if properly directed. We have not labored for nothing these thirty-two years, but we hope to accomplish ten-fold as much when the disability is removed which places the womanhood of this country on the same political status as idiots and criminals. Let us tell the world by our walk and conversation that we are worthy, let no uncertain sound be a loop for the hook of the enemy, but let us exemplify by a Christian courtesy, an intelligent understanding and a serious and earnest desire to do good, that we are in deed and in truth seeking to build the nation in righteousness, and be a strong factor in bringing in the happy condition of "doing justly, loving mercy and walking humbly with our God," while in His name and by His strength we expect to conquer. Let us as tried friends and true, follow on to do his will. In all things giving him the glory.

PRESENTATION.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Sexsmith, Empey Hill was brightened by a gathering of the Mount Pleasant people by which they expressed themselves in the following address and presentation:

Richmond, Feb. 4th, 1909.

To Mr. E. J. SEXSMITH,

Dear Sir and brother—We the people of Mount Pleasant would not let this opportunity pass without conveying to you some idea of the gratitude we feel towards you, as you have for a number of years helped us in our Church work. This was self imposed task for which you would receive no compensation and which at times was enough to try the patience of any one who possessed less of that virtue than yourself. Trying to make a clear transparent light out of a perverse lamp and we are told in his work that deeds of kindness, love and mercy are as legible as the stars on the brow of evening. You have always been at hand to help in time of need and always proved yourself the right man in the right place. However, we do appreciate your kindness and unselfishness for which we heartily thank you, we have therefore come to express to you in some tangible way the warm place you have in our hearts, please accept this chair as a slight token of our regard and esteem. We would also ask your "partner" in life to accept these tokens as a slight remembrance
